

Nazis 'Satisfied' With Progress of Drive in Russia

But Reich Is Attempting To Get Other Nations into the War

BERLIN, Friday, June 27 (AP)—German bombers have been raining explosives for two days on the Russian industrial city of Leningrad, the official news agency DNB disclosed today in one of the few bits of military information allowed the public in the first week of the war against the Soviets.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP)—The German army's drive to the east against Russia was claimed by military leaders to be progressing to their utmost satisfaction today, while the Reich with all the craft of its diplomacy sought to rally other peoples to support its new enterprise.

The march of Nazi soldiers in the field was called in Berlin the punch behind a rapidly forming European front against Bolshevism. "Down with Communism!" for the time has replaced "down with England!" as the German slogan.

In its daily communiqué, issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters, the high command itself was reticent about Russia, however, and in a succession of announcements emphasized the success of the German war on British shipping.

"Greater Operations"

"In the east," said this official war bulletin, "operations on land and in the air continued on schedule yesterday. After decisions fell in our favor in numerous border battles, successes in operations of great dimensions are beginning to show themselves."

This, aside from an observation that "naval units are participating in the fight against the Soviet union," completed the official review of the eastern front.

Among the details given unofficially by the German news agency DNB, however, was a report that German and Russian air squadrons had been heavily bombed important Russian naval bases along the northern coast of the Black Sea.

Vast quantities of munitions were said to have gone up in explosions at munitions depots hit by bombs. Attacks on railroad centers and highways and marching Russian columns in the northern Black Sea area were said to have brought Soviet military traffic virtually to a halt.

No "Important Revelations"

The average German, however, still knew little that was definite of the progress of the campaign. Half promises of yesterday that there would be important revelations within a few hours had not been realized tonight. German citizens still had to be satisfied with the high command's stereotyped assurance that the eastern drive goes on successfully according to plan.

Military spokesmen said that in numerous places the German army had penetrated deeply, but they shied at naming the places. They confined their observations of the official expositions of German advances.

On Wednesday, a Berlin military spokesman declared that German successes "baffling the imagination" would be disclosed today.

As to the developing European coalition against Communism, it was stated that already Rumania, Slovakia and Finland were giving military support to the German campaign in the east and observers stated that there was marked sympathy for Germany in other quarters—aside from allied Italy and Japan.

which the Russians lack. The quality of both mechanized and air equipment was considered substantially equal in design.

The estimated attacking strength about which less detailed information was available in Washington, included some 130 German divisions, twenty Rumanian and ten Finnish divisions. In naval strength in the Baltic Sea, but Russia was credited with an overwhelming margin in the Black Sea.

Britain Seeks To Get Russia's Pledge Not To Make Peace Alone

LONDON, June 26 (AP)—Great Britain was reported tonight to have sent a military mission speeding to Moscow via the middle east and at the same time was said to be planning to ask the Soviet union to pledge itself not to conclude a separate peace with Germany before the end of the war as Russia did once before—in the spring of 1918.

The military mission, understood to represent the army, navy and air force, was reported enroute to sit in with the Soviet high command to discuss details of British help in beating Germany.

Want More Bombing

Russia was known to want, for one thing, an even harder bombing of the German western front by British planes, an undertaking involving American air indirectly since the flow of American planes here permits the British to take greater risk in their new mass attacks.

British planes have made winter attacks on long flights to German-occupied Poland, but such flights to the new eastern front in the short nights of the summer are considered not feasible.

In connection with the reports that Russia would be asked to sign an agreement concluding a separate peace, informed quarters suggested that a formal British-Soviet alliance probably would be a necessary first step and they said there was no indication that such an alliance was being considered immediately.

U. S. Shows Interest

They added, however, that "no one knows whether there eventually will be one," and they conceded that both Britain and the United States probably would welcome Russian assistance against a separate peace as a condition for the sending of material aid which would fall into German hands in the event of a Russian capitulation.

There is no immediate indication that Britain's attitude toward Communists at home had been altered, despite a declaration today by William Gallacher, the only Communist member of Parliament, that "we will support the British government in any steps it takes" to cooperate with the Soviet union.

May Free Poles

Meanwhile negotiations were said to be going on in London to free 300,000 Polish soldiers who are prisoners in Soviet union that they may fight against Germany. A high neutral source said that progress was being made toward carrying out this plan despite Russia's original objection. The move first was suggested by the Poles.

The prisoners number many officers, including generals, and skilled troops who have had training with modern war implements.

The informant observed that while the Soviet union does not need man-power it does need skilled officers and he added that these particular officers know the terrain where the present fighting is taking place.

Soviet Troops

"Enemy fighters offered weak resistance to our bombers. The number of destroyed enemy aircraft and our losses are being established."

In the Baltic Sea our air force and light naval forces sank two enemy submarines."

The Soviets emphasized the strong resistance German paratroopers were meeting from soldiers and peasants in the Ukraine.

"For instance, when the enemy was effecting a parachute landing in a small Ukrainian town, a Red army cavalry unit stationed nearby immediately attacked and exterminated all the paratroopers at the moment of landing."

Rebels Against Hitler

One German soldier, Alfred Liskoff, not desiring to fight against the Soviet people, went over to our side," he called upon German soldiers "to overthrow Hitler's regime," the communiqué said.

This latest Soviet announcement like that of last night continued to cite individual cases of Soviet heroism; for instance, how one regimental commander broke through a German encirclement and continued to resist all German attempts to advance.

No land encounters occurred on the Soviet-Finnish frontier yesterday, it said.

Military experts have long speculated on the fate of any army thrusting into the vast reaches of the Soviet union, comparing such action in a general way with the inconclusive results the Japanese have attained in their march against China.

The particular movement described in this Moscow dispatch is similar to what the French tried in vain with their "defense in depth" against the German panzer drives last spring. There is no comparison between the French and the Russian terrain or the size and scope of the respective operations.

The French defense was compared, for the football-minded, with the familiar mouse-trap play where, in a tackle, the opposition blocked through with a minimum show of resistance and the blocker, thus feinted, is knocked out of the play with a lateral block put on by an opposition back.

Russian Tactics Secret

Russian maneuvers now used were developed behind a high wall of obscurity.

In this engagement between the two largest armies in the world, Russian peasants and laborers have dropped their chores, the Soviet press said today, to help the movement to pinch off and destroy the legions of Adolf Hitler.

Violent engagements were reported over the entire line from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

The press published a description of one action at an unidentified river in the Ukraine in which a German attempt to force a crossing was repulsed with the aid of peasants. (If not a border river, the account amounts to admission of German penetration into the grain-rich Ukraine).

Forty frontier guards, said the account, were reported to have checked the attack in a two-hour fight against superior German forces, with peasants rallying to support the guards until regular troops arrived.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, announced that locomotive crews, traffic personnel and track and communication workers of the railroads consider themselves as mobilized as the Red army itself.

"The personnel of one railway station near the front continued their work despite air bombardment and artillery fire," said Tass, "and when the Red army launched its counterattack the railwaymen went along with them."

Guardsmen Bags Plane

A guardsman of the southwestern railway, Tzuenko, together with two Red army men, brought down a German plane. An electrician at the Lwow railway station, Starshinov, repaired a damaged communication line under enemy fire. Near one of the stations on this railway students of a railway school detained five Fascist fliers who made a forced landing.

Disclosure of the civilian participation in the fighting came as the government press and radio exhorted the population to defend the fatherland and reminded it that hard times lay ahead.

"We know and will not forget for a single moment that the enemy is strong and that he has marshaled all his forces for the blow and has mobilized all his resources," said an editorial in the official party newspaper, Pravda, which was transmitted also by Tass.

Predicts Many Privations

"Fighting will be difficult," Pravda continued. "Many trials, many privations, many sacrifices are in store."

"We possess armed forces which are not only not inferior to the armed forces of German Fascism, but are superior."

A trial air raid alarm was reported held in Leningrad similar to the one held in Moscow, Monday.

In the capital, sale of vodka, wine and other alcoholic drinks was prohibited by one of a series of new severe wartime rulings. Civilians were ordered off the street between midnight and 4 a. m., and a 10:45 p. m. curfew was imposed on theaters, restaurants and other public places.

Meanwhile an official Russian statement issued here accused Finland of permitting German planes to operate from her territory to attack Soviet soil. A bombing attempt near Kronstadt, Soviet naval base, and at Kovalochi, were named specifically.

Land troops also attempted to cross the border at Kioivajärvi, the statement said.

Russia said she had scrupulously observed articles of the Finnish-Russian peace treaty of 1940 which provided that the two parties refrain from any attack upon each other.

Curfew in Moscow

Announcement of a curfew in Moscow was part of a nine-point order regulating war-time civilian life. Other rules forbade persons not registered in Moscow to enter the capital without special permits. Violations are made subject to martial law.

The supreme Soviet presidium also authorized directors of offices and factories to increase the working day from one to three hours to augment national defense.

Heretofore the Soviets have worked an eight-hour day.

Time and a half pay was offered for overtime work, vacations were cancelled.

A decree also provided that uniforms given soldiers become their personal property and do not have to be returned to the state.

6 British Bombers Reported Shot Down

BERLIN, Friday, June 27 (AP)—German pursuit planes shot down six of twenty-five British bombers making a mid-day raid on the French coast Thursday, the German official news agency DNB said early today.

The British bombers were accompanied by fighter planes, the agency said.

Germans Said To Have Captured Riga

LONDON, June 26 (AP)—Reuters, British news agency, carried a roundabout report tonight declaring the Germans had captured Riga, former capital of Latvia, one of the three Baltic states absorbed by Soviet Russia a year ago.

Italian Submarine Said To Have Sunk Turkish Steamer

Axis Partner Blamed for Destruction of the Refah

ANKARA, Turkey, June 26 (AP)—(Delayed)—The Turkish steamer Refah, sunk in the Mediterranean with a loss of 160 lives out of 180 passengers and crew members, was reliably reported today to have been sent down by an Italian submarine.

The 2500-ton steamer carried Turkish naval personnel assigned to bring back from England several warships built there for the Turkish navy.

Some of the twenty survivors were reported to have landed in Palestine, others at the British Mediterranean island of Cyprus. It was understood here that all the belligerent powers had been notified before the vessel sailed three days ago.

Previous reports from survivors had not identified the attacking submarine's nationality.

They said the ship, brightly lighted and with the Turkish colors painted on her sides, was torpedoed Monday night, sinking in two hours. The torpedo disabled the radio, so no distress call could be sent.

Only three officers and twenty-six men were known to have been saved, some landing at Karatas and Burum on the Turkish coast and others on the British island of Cyprus.

It was said that all belligerent powers had been notified of the Refah's departure for England.

Wants Sex Taught In State Schools

Dr. Leslie B. Hohman Addresses College Park Conference

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 26 (AP)—Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, professor of psychiatry at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, told parents and teachers today that he believed "sex should be taught widely in the public schools."

Dr. Hohman, principal speaker at the Maryland State Parent-Teacher Conference at the University of Maryland, said high school children have the alternative "of either accepting or rejecting the established code of sex relations and I suspect that what we get, by the large, is a complete violation of it."

"We educators, preachers and physicians have nothing to do with the shift in the mores. It came into civilization by its own development."

"Educators, preachers and physicians are going to have to do something more than sit back and let the change take place and then admit it after it is accomplished. I do think that sex should be taught widely in the public schools."

Dr. Hohman said there had been an overweighed attitude toward the sex problem but there were indications "that this attitude is breaking down among the youth of today."

The coming into our civilization of less weighty attitudes towards sex has tended to put it back in its normal place."

"One thing we can and must do about sex," he declared, "is to begin educating children at an early age. Let's start in early and let's talk it freely and openly."

"Boys and girls of today don't meet in each other's homes. That's too bad. That's where they ought to meet."

The sessions will close tomorrow. In the afternoon delegates will be presented with certificates by Dr. Harold F. Benjamin, dean of the College of Education.

Abandon Search for 3 American Fliers

LIMA, Peru, June 26 (AP)—Search was abandoned today for the bodies of three men who died yesterday when a U. S. army light bomber caught fire and fell into the sea off the Peruvian coast between Barranca and Huacho.

No trace of the wreckage was found by U. S. and Peruvian planes and a Peruvian destroyer which searched the scene from the time of the crash until this afternoon.

Rumanian Government Leaves Bucharest

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—The Rumanian government has left Bucharest following Soviet air attacks on that capital, NBC reported tonight from Ankara.

German sources in Turkey continue to claim that 2,000 Russian planes have been destroyed thus far and predicted that the Germans will attain "absolute air authority by tomorrow," the NBC correspondent said.

He goes everywhere with the second armored division band but does his stuff in only one selection—he twists the siren, to simulate the wail of tanks, when the band strikes up the division's march.

Newspaper Guild Again Comes To Aid of Bridges

Deplores Efforts To Deport Him after He Defies F.B.I.

DETROIT, June 26 (AP)—Harry Bridges, CIO labor leader whom the federal government is seeking to deport on the grounds he has been a member of the Communist party, tonight accused the Federal Bureau of Investigation of being a "super-labor spy organization."

Addressing the American Newspaper Guild (CIO), in convention here, Bridges, international president of the Longshoremen's Union, asserted:

"They (the FBI) are not just looking for subversive activities; they are out to bring down organized labor."

He declared his deportation hearing, recently concluded, was "weaker than the last one" and that "despite special laws they now have they won't get anywhere with their case against me."

A previous deportation hearing was won by Bridges.

He said that despite "all the smoke screen of Communism" the issue in the deportation proceedings was "hours, wages, working conditions and trade unionism."

The ANG, he said, was "the largest contribution of people who testified against me on behalf of the FBI."

"We recognize the enemies of the labor movement no matter where they are and these people belong in that category," he said.

Before he spoke the ANG approved a resolution pledging support to Bridges and asserting it "resented his continued persecution as an attack on labor."

Thousands

along the procession line were drenched.

80,000 Join in March

Officials of the Roman Catholic Church said 80,000 made the twofold march from Como Park to the great altar in the Baldachin at the fairgrounds despite the rain.

The procession, an honor guard for Christ preliminary to the giving of the last benediction of the Congress by the papal legate, his eminence, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, opened with a picturesque tableau of the life of Christ from the prophecies of the Old and New Testament to the crucifixion. Ancient folk of Jerusalem, the martyrs of early Christianity, all in the varied colored dress of that far-away time, some carrying palm leaves symbolical of martyrdom, composed the tableau.

Others in the procession included a military guard from Fort Snelling, boy scouts, flag guards, Catholic societies of men and women, girls in their ornamental cakes, nurses, parietal altar, parish, and Knights of Holy Orders in court dress with swords, priests in black cassock and white surplice, the monsignor, abbots and bishops in their purple cassocks, the bishops in white cope and mitre. Hymns and rosaries rose unendingly from the marching thousands.

Cardinal Carries Sacrament

Then appeared the Crosier Bearers carrying the shepherd's crook of the papal legate. The cardinal, marching under a white canopy supported by Knights of Columbus carried into the fairgrounds within his hand the Blessed Sacrament held within the great silver monstrance. As the monstrance passed by all along the line people knelt, many in the wet and mud.

Thus the procession streamed over five hours into the fairgrounds race track where a crowd estimated by the church at 45,000 awaited.

As the assembled thousands answered the prayer of the papal legate, the cardinal arose before the altar, raised the monstrance in the sign of the cross and blessed them with the sacred host, the solemn benediction and last act of the Congress, performed as thousands knelt bareheaded in a steady rain.

RAF Apparently

"For anything beyond that must look either to new fighters of equal performance and greater range—and some of these are crossing the Atlantic—or to seizure for its use of advanced bases by successful military enterprise."

May Attempt Landings

Developing the theme of British invasion of the Nazi-held coast, Aeroplane said, "If local air superiority could be so built up that military operations could be conducted in the shelter of it then that supremacy could serve to preserve seized landing grounds in daylight as re-fueling bases and to make a good show of protecting and defending them at night."

"The cumulative effect of such advancing step by step, as the RAF pushed an umbrella forward, might have most embarrassing effects on the enemy now busily occupied with a new piece of aggression beyond his eastern frontiers."

The biggest and newest bombers have been used in these forays over western Germany. The RAF was reported daily dropping more than three times the weight of bombs there was able to shower on Nazi targets last fall.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

"The most baffling thing about the Russo-German war news is the Nazis' failure to come through with promised announcements of successes that would 'baffle the imagination.'"

It indicates that Nazi legions lunging against Russian defenses have struck unexpected snags somewhere. The fact that German spokesmen have confined themselves to glittering generalities lends some credibility to Moscow reports that Nazi armored spearheads which broke through at vital points have been cut off before their supporting infantry could follow through.

At any rate it seems clear that the Nazi time-table has been thrown off schedule, although how seriously is yet to be disclosed.

If there was an instance in Poland, Norway, Flanders, France or the Balkans where a German panzer break-through was not promptly and effectively followed up by Nazi infantry, it was never publicly disclosed.

Panzer Move a Failure

Infantry follow-up was the prime element of German panzer technique in those battles that swiftly shattered enemy resistance on wide fronts. German army publications have been full of professional expositions of the true nature of panzer warfare as developed by the Nazis.

Invariably the German military specialists analyzing previous victories have stressed the infantry follow-up as the vital factor. Tank attack, supported or preceded by dive bombers, they contended, merely paved the way.

What really counted, they said, was staff success in rushing motorized infantry into the gap, unopposed by marching, to fall upon a dazed and disorganized enemy before he could recover.

Such tactics turned what otherwise would have been merely local successes into stepping stones for vast flanking operations and permitted assaults from the rear on enemy front positions.

Dunkirk Not Repeated

That is what happened in "the battle of the bulge" in France when the Germans crossed the Meuse. It happened again in Flanders when a panzer break-through, infantry supported, reached the channel coast, far in the rear of British-French-Belgian front lines in Belgium. That was what led to the Dunkerque evacuation.

The same thing happened in northern France.

Red Air Force

kept up a continuous bombardment of Finnish territory but no objectives of importance were reported hit, although forests were set afire.

Sture was subjected to incendiary raids and Finland's most important port, Kotka, was reported bombed again.

"We shall fight for the freedom of our country and for the creed of our fathers," declared President Risto Rytli.

The Kremlin, he told his radio audience, "has decided on even more brutal measures against Finland than before."

But, he added, "now we are not alone! Great Germany, under the leadership of Chancellor Hitler, has decided to wage war against the Soviets and other nations have joined Germany."

"Russia in this task is facing a united front stretching from the White Sea to the Black Sea."

Sadly the president allured to the many conflicts in which Finns have fought to remain free.

Rytli made no mention of a declaration of war, but emphasized that Finland was determined to defend itself to the last breath.

Red bombing squadrons, dumping their explosive loads over a wide area of Finland during the day, provided a thunderous and deadly introduction to the president's speech.

Turku shuddered under a rain of bombs again today after having suffered ten attacks during the night.

Many Reported Killed

Many were reported killed and wounded there and damage was heavy.

(A Moscow broadcast, heard in London, charged that Finland had violated her peace treaty with Russia under Adolf Hitler's dictate and that Soviet forces would strike back to halt such provocation.)

Britain scrutinized the Finnish-Russian situation closely to determine her stand and informed sources predicted that the British policy would be that any friend of Germany is an enemy of Britain.)

Helsinki this morning had its sixth air raid alarm in a little more than twenty-four hours.

Five Local Men Are Attending B.&O. Relief Convention

Five Cumberland men and a Keyser, W. Va., man are in Buffalo, N. Y., attending the annual convention of the B. & O. Railroad Relief Department as delegates of the Cumberland division. They left here Wednesday night for the two-day session which comes to a close today.

Those from Cumberland are David S. McMillan, George P. Buskey, Marion J. Coleman, Charles F. Hare, Raymond Vlands, and George E. Sirbaugh, of Keyser.

Eighty-two delegates from fourteen divisions of the railroad system are attending the convention. Election of four members of the Advisory committee, one member of the Operating committee, and filling such vacancies as may have occurred during the year is the chief business before the group.

eastern Greece. An infantry-backed panzer attack lunged westward across the mountains separating southern Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, outflanked the Greek forts guarding the Struma valley, and reached Salonika via the Vardar. That was the beginning of the end for Greece.

Invariably the Nazi technique has followed the same pattern. The point in recalling all this is its relation to what may have happened on the most critical Russo-German fighting fronts in the Pripiet marshes areas. If Moscow war bulletins are credible, the Red army has achieved something that no other German foe of this war has done.

Russian reports omit reference to the fate of cut-off Nazi tank units. Lacking infantry support and fuel or ammunition beyond their self-contained supply, they must soon turn back to fight their way again into German lines. Otherwise they would be immobilized and destroyed.

Savage River

proximately seventy-five per cent will be those certified as essential to defense.

No Savage River Cut

The largest project of those in the remaining twenty-five per cent not classified as defense projects, Willard said, is the Savage River dam in Garrett county, which will be continued because of its size, importance and degree of completion.

Supervisors of projects which will be discontinued were advised two weeks ago of the impending curtailment, and arrangements have been under way since that time to close down work in an orderly fashion.

The reduction in employment and the number of projects will not necessitate closing down the WPA completely in any additional counties, Willard added. The agency was already inactive in six counties of the state before word was received from Washington to plan the current reduction.

Reduction of the rolls to 5,000 will bring the WPA in Maryland to its lowest employment quota since its inception in 1935. The lowest point reached before the beginning of this year was 9,800 in November, 1937.

The peak employment in the state was reached in February, 1936, when 25,400 persons were on the rolls.

As recently as January of this year, the WPA employed almost 12,500 persons in Maryland.

Elderly Man Hurt In Fall from Train

An elderly man who gave his name as Herman Levinson, 80, was admitted last night to Memorial hospital with possible back injuries, suffered yesterday when he fell from a moving freight train into a twenty-foot culvert near Frank's Lane, police reported.

Levinson was found about 8 o'clock by Officer John G. Powers, who said the man had been lying there all day. The man said he was a native of Norway and that he had no address. Powers added:

His condition was reported "fairly good" late last night.

JUST MOVING along slapdash, or hodge-podge, you can throw away all kinds of contracts which are there to be made. It pays in the long run to take a bit of time to plan the play of your hand. Particularly notice the cards of moderate height. Many players neglect this, and pay heed to practically only two factors—the really high cards and the suit lengths. Those intermediate fellows, like nines and tens, can be very important.

At the other table, after winning the first club trick, the declarer noted his possession of the 10, 9 and 8 of spades, valuable if the J was singleton in either of the defenders' hands. ### An Opportunity To Help Our Young Defenders

PEOPLE of Cumberland and elsewhere in Allegany county, in common with Americans everywhere, owe something to their young men who have gone into army training to prepare themselves for defense of the nation.

It is true that the home folks are behind these young men in spirit and in the willingness to supply them through taxation with the means they should have; but these young patriots are making a big sacrifice and it is only fair that it be alleviated and comforted as much as possible.

Maintenance of morale is vital in the experience through which these young men are going, not alone for their own personal sake but also for the sake of the main purpose of their present duty. The most of them have left their homes and the friendly surroundings of their home communities for the first time. They naturally become subject to homesickness, which is a rather depressing malady as all know who have suffered it. And quite as naturally they seek to overcome it with such occupations, relaxations and recreations as may be available. These are not likely to be what the home folks would desire and it is necessary that some satisfactory substitute be provided in order to divert these young men from undesirable indulgences and associations.

A means of promoting the morale of these young men in various respects is provided by the campaign for funds now being waged here for the United Service Organizations. The money so raised will provide places in club houses already provided for by the government where the service men can go when off duty and enjoy clean amusements, decent surroundings, facilities for writing home and reading, and where they can get helpful guidance, sympathetic advice or religious consolation when in need of them.

Support of the drive gives opportunity for the folks at home, to protect whom these young men are giving their best, to do something very much worth while in the cause of national defense.

Little Enthusiasm For Joe Stalin

EFFORTS by members of the Washington administration to herd American public opinion into all-out support of Stalin in his war with Hitler are not arousing any notable degree of enthusiasm throughout the country.

There is general admission that this nation has reason to fear Hitler's march of conquest, which threatens external dangers, but many are pointing out that the country also has reason to fear the tightly-knit Communist organization which receives money and takes orders from Moscow and which is an internal menace in the United States.

A typical expression is that by the Cincinnati Times-Star. "As between Stalin and Hitler," it says, "Americans can afford to be genuinely neutral. Our interest lies in a war that will be closely enough contested that even the winner will be much weaker at the end of it. We say this not without feeling for the millions of Russian and German boys who will have to die for a cause in which most of them are probably very little interested. However, our first interest is with the boys of the western, democratic nations. The future will be brighter for them if neither side in the present titanic struggle in Russia scores a quick and easy victory."

The Times-Star takes the occasion to note that the present efforts of administrationists to curry favor for Stalin is quite in line with the known coddling of Communists by Roosevelt administration in general and by Mrs. Roosevelt in particular during the most of the last eight and a half years. That naturally prompts indifference to the sympathy drive now under way in view of the subversive activities carried on in the defense production by those to whom such unwarranted favors were extended.

War News Puzzles American Readers

SINCE Germany went to war with Russia more and bigger lies seem to have been told in official statements. Read the official communiqué from Moscow, then take a look at the German statement issued on the same day. Each tells you of "important victories."

The Germans, according to Berlin, are smashing through Russia "on schedule." The Russians, Moscow tells us, are holding the Germans in all sectors and slaughtering thousands of troops. Readers can take their choice. More will believe the Russian statement than the German, principally because they want it to be true.

Of first importance in this great struggle of the gigantic armies is the work of the air fleets. Russia says 125 German planes were brought down in the first two days of the war and that only a "few" Soviet planes were lost. Germany reports that "hundreds" of Russian planes were destroyed either in the air or on the ground and that German losses in the air are trivial. Take your choice.

The truth about the war is almost impossible to learn. The Associated Press, greatest news gathering unit in the world, has many men in Europe, but a strict censorship prevents them from cabling the facts home. In some cases their dispatches have been cut down and important parts deleted. What is left gives a wrong impression when published minus the deleted sentences.

A few people blame the newspapers for the war news or rather the lack of authentic war news at times. The papers, however, are just as anxious to print the true facts as the public is to get them and you'll notice that statements by the belligerents are credited to these belligerents.

Some day the real facts will come out, but until then the best you can learn about the war is what is furnished by the American writers who are trying to send their news stories as they see them and who no doubt are more peevish over the censorship than anyone else.

Vote on War Is Not Likely

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM E. HESS, of the Second Ohio district, is out with a proposal that the people of his district should take a vote on whether they should go to war, and, as has been the case with all of those who have entertained such an idea, he is getting the razzle-dazzle from various sources. One criticism is that he should not look upon himself as a sort of glorified adding machine but as a legislator chosen to make some use of his own judgment.

There is one potent reason why any vote on a declaration of war will always find big opposition. It is that in this peace-loving country the result will always be a foregone conclusion, namely, an overwhelming vote against it. Particularly would it be so at this time in view of the widespread dissatisfaction over certain phases of the nation's foreign policy that to so many seem to be unnecessary steps toward war.

It is to be granted, however, that a difference obtains between the wish to remain out of war and circumstances of palpable self defense. But there is no denying the cold fact that engagement in any war would be folly unless it is solidly backed by public support. It is not likely, therefore, that any war plebiscite will be permitted in this country for the time being. The instrumentality of emotion-stirring propaganda will be preferred over any registration of popular sentiment in addition to those we already have.

A Vital Mechanism Continues at Work

PUBLIC SENTIMENT, as registered through the press and other forums of opinion, has preserved another important safeguard of personal rights by forcing the Washington administration to drop its demands for powers to "requisition" and take over, either temporarily or permanently, property of any kind or character, whether real or personal, tangible or intangible.

The administration has submitted another draft of a bill authorizing the requisitioning of "any military or naval equipment, or munitions, or component parts thereof, or machinery, tools, or materials necessary to manufacture such equipment or munitions."

While the draft modifies the original proposal in several other instances, the foregoing represents the keynote of the thing and it appears to meet the most of the very serious objections made against the original demand. That was such an extreme request as to occasion wonder why such sweeping powers should ever have been contemplated, even in view of the other extremes in kind to which the administration has moved.

Anyway, the switch can be attributed to public opposition and the free means of recording it, in which facts there is further gratifying reassurance that a vital mechanism of representative government continues unimpaired.

Among those who regard the German blitzkrieg against Russia with horror are the radio news commentators who have not yet recovered from pronouncing Polish, Balkan and Middle East place names.

With women now controlling seventy-five per cent of the nation's spending and Uncle Samuel taking twenty-five per cent in taxes, things are even worse than most men had suspected.

Although the Duce has dared the United States to war on the axis, Florella LaGuardia has shown remarkable restraint so far.

Russia's ten-year "non-aggression" pact with Hitler set a new longevity record, at that. It lasted almost two years.

There may always be a France, but after flirting with Hitler its reputation will never be the same.

Apology to an Animal

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A dear friend of mine had the habit of picking up all kinds of strange animals and bringing them home. Stray cats, dogs, birds, it made no odds—she liked them, they liked her, it was a go!

I don't think she ever brought home an eagle or a mountain lion or a rattlesnake, but she would have if she'd found one on the road and it needed her loving care and understanding.

The difficulty was that while all her strange visitors liked her, not many of them liked her friends.

I remember the time her star boarder was a long, thin, slinky, weasel-shaped critter that we thought might be a stone martin but we weren't sure.

He loved her. He'd squeak with delight whenever she was around. . . . Run up one arm, over her shoulders, down the other arm, play hide-and-go-seek with her, curl up contentedly in her lap and sleep like a healthy baby.

But he didn't like me. . . . And I didn't like his slinky looks or his sharp teeth. He may have had the sweetest disposition any animal ever had but I abhorred his ways. . . . He was always lying in wait for me. Trying to scare me. . . . He would rush out from beneath a couch and up my trousers (inside) and then rush down again. . . . Lots of fun for him. Not any for me. . . . So I was never able to work up any great amount of affection for him.

If you must know the truth, I never saw that animal without thinking of a fellow in our town who was supposed to be a joker with a great sense of humor. . . . But I never liked him because he always seemed to me that there was malice in his laughing eyes, envy in his humor, cruelty in his "practical jokes." His wit was like a settle, his geniality was a mean mask. I kept away from him.

But that little stone martin couldn't have been one-tenth as wicked as that human being whose laughter was such an unclean weapon. . . . I hereby apologize to the little fellow.

Quick Victory Not Certain in Russia, Gen. Johnson Says

WASHINGTON, June 26.—It is interesting to learn, through the widest kind of publicity, and within forty-eight hours after Hitler's volcanic action, that our Washington military experts predict that Hitler will probably "win" the "Russian campaign."

Hugh S. Johnson in a month and must win it in three months or lose the war. All this is accompanied with advice to the Russian high command on how to defeat him.

There are also hints in this story that all along the "experts" knew what Hitler was going to do—even as Mr. Churchill hinted that he knew what Hitler intended. These dispatches do not say who these "Washington military experts" are, but presumably the reference is to our general staff.

Lot of Boloney

To a casual observer this would seem a good time for military experts to soft-pedal their experting in public and try to produce a little better quality of their art in practice. It is a lot of boloney that they knew all along about this explosive move. It was always a possibility, and perhaps an eventual certainty, but until about three days before it occurred, no indication had appeared in our news that it would happen now.

Perhaps a few individuals in our general staff and high command suspected it, but the statement that its immediate launching was a consensus of our military expert opinion just simply is not true.

The anti-Axis governments, including Britain and our own, are in an unhappy spot. If they didn't know it and weren't prepared for it, what is the matter with their military and diplomatic services or information? If they did know it and didn't tell their people about it, what kind of "rummykadoo" goes on here in these democracies?

They Didn't Know How

Of the two embarrassments it seems to me that it would be wiser and more honest to choose the former—that they didn't know. In the first place, it is the true explanation. In the second, if we are to be at our best in this war it will have to be on a basis of complete confidence—confidence of people in their governments, but also, and even more important, of governments in their people, hiding the imminence of such an earthquake, if its coming was known, would be almost unforgivable.

And now about this business of Hitler's winning the Russian campaign in a month—or losing it if he doesn't win in three. If the experts didn't know enough to predict the coming of what appears to be the biggest land campaign in history, they don't know enough to predict that.

They didn't know enough to predict a single of the many tremendous results of the astonishing land campaigns in Western Europe and the Balkans. They didn't know enough to insist on American rearmament for modern, mechanized, motorized and aerial warfare.

On that record wouldn't it be better to withhold some of these ultimate conclusions until a few more facts about this bewildering business are at hand?

Objectives Not Clear

In the first place, what does "winning the Russian campaign by Hitler" mean? That is not at all clear, because his own objectives are not clear. The experts are clearly right in saying that his objectives are not the worthless gutted shells of Russian cities or even fortresses. They are control of the raw resource centers of Russia, of which the richest by far is the Ukraine. Both because that requires the destruction of Russian military power and because the destruction of that power is a necessity for Nazi security and defense, the first ob-

SUPPORTS JOHNSON

Speaker Rayburn

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, of Texas, is pictured, above, in Washington marking his absentee ballot for Representative Lyndon Johnson, who is running for the vacant Senate seat of the late Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas. The election to fill the vacancy will be held June 28.

AND NOW--THE HOUSE IS HAUNTED, TOO

Hitler's Latest Move Has Bewildered Most of Washington, Stewart Says

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Executive, congressional, military, diplomatic, political and miscellaneous expert comment in Washington apropos Herr Hitler's attack on Russia doesn't make much sense. Not yet, anyway. There's a lot of it, but bewilderingly about all it expresses.

The situation recalls the ancient story of the young reporter, who assigned by his editor to report on the destruction of the Russian army, arrived on the scene, took a look, tried to talk with some of the disaster survivors, found 'em fairly incoherent and hastily wired to headquarters the message, "Everything's confusion. Can send nothing."

Time To Look Only One Way

From the New York Times

After a year of preparations, after billions of appropriations and after much talk, it is becoming painfully apparent that we are still far from an all-out effort to provide all-out aid. With the current fiscal year almost over, we have succeeded in spending only $5,500,000,000 for national defense.

We have within the administration men who are facing two ways. With one eye on defense, the other is firmly fixed upon a dazzling vision of new experiments at home.

It is time to ask what kind of defense program we really want. Do we want an all-out program in which "our natural resources, our productive capacity and the genius of our people for mass production" can really be turned loose to "help Britain outstrip the Axis"? Or do we want a divided program in which the defeat of Hitler is at least partially subordinated to the demands of a bigger and better scheme of priming the pump, redistributing the income and advancing the cause of regulated economy?

It is time to stop facing two ways and turn our whole energies toward the defense of our nation from foreign aggression that menaces it.

An American Institution

From the Connellsville, Pa., Courier

One of the finest of American customs—the family reunion—is just coming into its season. It parallels summer, when people may get outdoors and have space for getting together in numbers without being confined in a hall.

Certainly nowhere else on the globe today are families able to get together for reunions. Possibly nowhere else except in America are families able to keep in touch with all branches. War has broken millions of families, some of which will never find each other again.

But this is America. Love of home children and freedom are still the great activating influences in life here. That is something it would be well to remember at every family reunion this year. Appreciation of America and its blessings will serve to strengthen the bulwarks against invasion of "isms." Program churches for family reunions will serve a good purpose by including such a feature in their list of events.

The general verdict is that Adolf in attacking Russia in violation of his pact with Moscow, essentially was after plunder, but that, incidentally, he deliberately counted on summing up public opinion in countries like this one. Cannibal as he is, it's widely recognized that he's clever.

Dispatches from Tokio, Chungking, Vichy and Ankara relate that these capitals are hopelessly disorganized. Japan's a traditional enemy of Russia's, but recently the pair framed up a rather friendly treaty, supposedly at Herr Hitler's dictation. Today he's at war with the Russians, the Japs are his Axis partners. What about their pact with Moscow, which he inspired? Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, at war with the Mikado, has been getting lots of help from the Soviets. Can Moscow continue to send it while fighting Berlin? If not, it'll all have to come from the U. S. A.—another load on us.

Will France Revolt?

Nobody believes that the French, while beaten, are otherwise than bitterly hostile to Germany. Will they revolt if Herr Hitler gets up to his ears on his east front? Turkey's got a treaty with the Germans, but it's likewise friendly with Russia and neutrality—bound with Britain. Treaties no longer are any good, anyway. Turkey's, with Germany, is a liability rather than an asset. Will the Turks stick to it if they can chuck it into the wastebasket?

Little doubt's expressed that the Germans can beat the Russians wherever they meet in stand-up combat—superior discipline and equipment. But Russia's so big and so strong in numbers that many authorities believe it basically will hold out indefinitely—especially if it gets help from the democracies.

Finland Is On the Spot

From the Pittsburgh Press

Never did history produce a more dramatic parallel than that which now exists as between Britain and Stalin and Finland and Hitler.

It's covered by the story of the political leader who said of a particularly rapacious war-heeler—"of course he's a scoundrel, but he's our scoundrel."

Stalin, the scoundrel, is now Britain's scoundrel, and Churchill who declares he will not unsay anything he has ever said about Communism, nevertheless welcomes Stalin's help.

Any port in a storm.

But as the wheel has turned, Hitler has become Finland's scoundrel. Accordingly, Finland is forced to line up with him against the ancient enemy, Russia.

It's not for us, therefore, to criticize the practicality of Finland any more than it is to criticize the practicality of Churchill.

Finland, hedged in against any possible aid from either Britain or America, her one port of entry now closed by blockade, and her food shippings cut to the starvation line, has no choice, except in self-preservation, to select the lesser of two evils. That evil happens to be Germany.

But Finland, like the United States and Britain, is passionately democratic. She hates dictatorship as much as we do. Paying a tragic price, she bravely fought the Muscovites and saved part of her clean and self-respecting little country.

She has been a symbol, to us, of debt-paying and fair-dealing. In an era when wealth flourished and seemed the easy way out for other nations, she never wavered.

So we recommend a remembrance of that as the new scene unfolds.

At heart, Finland has no more gone Nazi than Churchill has gone Bolshevik.

Cafe Society Only A Pale Imitation Of Former Years

By EDWIN C. HILL

We offer no data from the Brookings Institution to support this finding, but by all accounts both the parties and the wine agents of cafe society today are but pale imitations of the real thing, circa 1900, and circa the Waldorf-Astoria bar.

We were talking about this the other night with our friend Bert Crockett, of Edna C. Hill the Hotel Biltmore, under whose cool scrutiny have come enough exploding coals to float a battleship. "No, there will never be another George Kessler, the wine agent, or Colonel Gourard, the bar-fly," said Mr. Crockett, a bit wistfully, it seemed, for he is a connoisseur not only of our traditional cuisine but of our authentic night-life personnel, for several decades back, and he doesn't like to see it pass.

George Kessler looked like an Assyrian, sharp-eyed, watchful, adroit, and he must have been one of those "spit" personalities we heard about in later years, with his seeming ability to be in many places at once, to shove his Meets and Chandeliers champagne. Mr. Crockett recalled Kessler's amazing knowledge of who was who in those days and his alertness in seeing that any illustrious personage always had a bottle of his champagne conspicuously served. He was always fastidiously dressed and with an expensive account like the widow's cruise of oil that never ran dry.

Like an Ambassador

Then there was the imposing Manny Chappelle, who looked like an ambassador to the Court of St. James's, with his classical features and distinguished bearing, alert as Kessler in tooling the spotlight toward his bottled goods.

Cafe society now seems subdued, hesitant and faltering compared to the big splash around Rectors or Delmonico's at the beginning of this century. There was gusto in that other day, an assured and proud ascendancy of pelf and showmanship and no apologies to anybody. Gainsborough hats, ostrich plumes, big blazing breeches, ample curves and coiffures were the natural accompaniments of an era of bold enterprise, even if the more fastidious women guests did drink their cocktails out of teacups. One cannot imagine the modern equivalent of the beautiful Lillian Russell, with her plumes and her hourglass figure, sweeping into Rector's. Nor the forthright incarnation of James Buchanan Brady, the brass-fitting salesman, also with a magical expense account, who became "Diamond Jim."

Many Others

Anna Robinson, beautiful American show girl, festooned with diamonds, fiancée of an Australian multi-millionaire, drifts into this retrospect; and tiny and pretty little Fanny Ward, the actress, always followed by a parade of masculine admirers, until she became the chateaufort of Joe Lewis, the South African diamond millionaire; Tod Sloan, the gaudy and foolish little jockey, blowing in his then fabulous takings on the turf, to become an indigent later on; the knowing little Abe Hummel, tricky divorce lawyer, with ears standing out like a skyscraper, never missing a trick. The roll call wouldn't be complete without the alluring Adele Ritchie, actress; Nat Goodwin, Edward Lauterbach, corporation lawyer, an Australian; Lily Langtry's friend, Freddie Goodhart; Stanford White, tall distinguished, urbane, and a sullen-eyed youngster named Harry Thaw.

Debs Didn't Count

The debs were pretty carefully herded off by themselves in those days. They didn't circulate in cafe society then as they do now. Comparatively, there seemed to be a greater proportion of standouts in the old line-up, even if the high visibility had to be attained at great labor and expense.

At any rate, to repeat, there was a roaring, rollicking gusto in the whole business which you don't see now. One might say cafe society believed in itself more than it does now. There seems to be just about the same proportion of raffish adventures, see-in-the-hole citizens among those who come before and after.

Don't Pet Child After Spanking, Doctor Advises

Parents Should Try To Be Impersonal in Punishing Youngsters

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Assuming that a punishment has been wisely chosen, it brings the best results when it is connected in the child's mind only with his misdeed. Practically all the failures and headaches incident to punishment come from the fact that punishment is always administered by a person, usually the parent. The child seldom connects it solely with the forbidden act. He nearly always reacts to the feelings of the punisher.

Try To Be Impersonal
Parents should try to be completely impersonal in punishing a child. Certain things should be forbidden, and the child should be told that if he does them he will not escape the penalty. Then either the father or mother should give him the punishment that they have told him will be the result of his act.

You should not raise your voice, become angry or irritated but should calmly go about the unpleasant task.

Parents' Behavior Important
Even though it breaks your heart to hear his piteous cries you should not melt at his pleadings and fondle him after his spanking. That would make him believe that you are sorry about having punished him and that you were wrong.

So under no conditions pet him. However, do not act as though you were angry with him. Divert his attention to his toys or go about your business as if nothing out of the ordinary had occurred. This will bring an impersonal relationship into punishment.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Suppose a child of three while at play alone swears or uses some other naughty word. What would you do?

A. I would ignore it completely. If it persisted after several days, I should explain quietly: "In our home we do not use such words."

Then, if after a few weeks he still uses these words, I would follow each one I heard with instant physical pain. Of course, it would be stupid for me to punish him, or even rebuke him, if other members of the family used such words in his presence.

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. What is the reason for buying a Defense Bond?

A. To keep America free. To show your faith and pride in your country. To warn foreign dictators that the United States is the strongest country in the world.

Q. But if I have not enough money to buy a Defense Bond, what can I do?

A. Buy Defense Postal Stamps, on sale almost everywhere. Your post office, bank, department store or drugist has them, or can get them for you, at 10 cents upward. Save enough stamps to exchange for a Defense Bond.

Note. — To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for literature to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Georgia N. Boyd Becomes Bride of Devon Menges

Local Girl and Hyndman Man Are Married in Ceremony Here

Miss Georgia Naomi Boyd and Devon Roy Menges were married yesterday morning, under an improvised arch of palms and white spring flowers, in the home of her parents, 421 Arch street, with the Rev. C. K. Welch, of the United Brethren church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Boyd and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Menges, Hyndman, Pa. Miss Mildred Blades was maid of honor and Walter Johnson was the best man.

Miss Jean Ellis sang, "Because," with Mrs. C. K. Welch at the piano. Mrs. Welch also played the wedding march.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a "magnolia" crepe redingote trimmed in gold, with light blue accessories, and wore a corsage of tall-man roses.

The maid of honor wore an olive green princess style dress, with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Boyd chose a green "hemlock sheer" print with white accessories, for her daughter's wedding, her corsage was of salmon gladioli.

Mrs. Menges wore a costume of tan and navy blue, and a corsage of red gladioli.

The bride is a graduate of Fort Hill high school and attended Cathlamet's Business school, after which she was employed by the Community Baking Company until she resigned recently. The bridegroom is a graduate of Hyndman high school and is employed in the transit department of the Potomac Edison Company.

A three tier wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bride and bridegroom, pink roses and white candles adorned the luncheon table for the wedding reception which followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Menges will reside at 11 Valley street upon their return from a Southern wedding trip. Guests attending the reception included the Rev. and Mrs. C. K. Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Menges, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Beal, Miss Jane Cook, Miss Ruth Brashears, Miss Jean Ellis, Miss Mary Blades, John Tipton, Noellin Beal, Janet Beal and Fred Boyd.

Double Wedding Held

A double wedding ceremony was performed yesterday morning when Mrs. Sadie May Myers, Somerset, Pa., and Stier Lester Hedrick, Petersburg, W. Va.; and Miss Ollie Virginia Reed, Petersburg, W. Va., and James Walter Myers, Somerset, Pa., were married in the parsonage of the Methodist church, Oakland.

TRIED IT YET?
IT'S 8 WAYS BETTER!

WAIT TILL YOU GET your hands on a cake of Swan! Wait till you try Swan! You're in for the soap surprise of your life!

1. Swan's whiter! Pure and mild as imported "100% olive oil" castles. Ask your doctor. He has the details about Swan in his medical journals.
2. Suds 2 times quicker than old-type floating soaps—in hard water, cold water.
3. Gives lather that's richer, creamier, wallowing thick!
4. Much firmer! Lasts and lasts! Feel Swan! It's harder, much firmer, soldier to the touch. It has lots less moisture than old-style floating soaps.
5. It's smoother, finer-textured, too.
6. Smell! Swan's fresher, cleaner! Never strong, never rancid.
7. Swan even breaks smoother. No wasteful, hard-to-handle edges.
8. More real soap—much less moisture in Swan. You don't need to store a supply to harden and dry out. Wedge it for you. Swan won't warp either.

Kitchen to bathroom, nursery to laundry, use Swan. Compare it! If you don't say—"Swan's better!"—we'll refund double the purchase price. Simply send wrapper to Swan, Lever Brothers Company, Cambridge, Mass.

U-235 May Be Hitler's Secret Weapon

Element 30,000,000 Times More Potent than TNT May Revolutionize Way of Life, Scientists Say

Dr. Millikan observes effects of cosmic rays

By ANDREW R. BOONE
Central Press Correspondent

PARADISE, Cal., June 26 — It is U-235 Hitler's secret weapon?

Word coming from Germany recently indicates scientists there may have a big surprise ready to spring soon.

U-235 is uranium, the number indicating it is 235 times heavier than hydrogen.

It is 30,000,000 times more potent than TNT and a chunk no bigger than your fat will propel a battleship from New York to Liverpool and home again.

American physicists do not yet have at hand enough U-235 for extended researches. When supplies become available, well-known authorities say, the world will experience advances in industry, science and every-day living, no imagination can compass.

One ton of U-235, according to Dr. R. M. Langer, California Institute of Technology physicist, could produce an explosion which would destroy all life within a radius of 100 miles or more.

Atomic Bombs

The other day a suggestion reached the United States that the Germans have come upon means for extracting and concentrating U-235 which may inaugurate the predicted era of atomic weapons.

Drs. G. Dickel and K. Glorius, writing in Die Naturwissenschaften, long considered a reliable German scientific publication, reported discovery of a method for breaking down krypton, an argon element into krypton 84 and krypton 86.

To the layman, this epochal development means nothing. The physicist, however, reads between the lines.

This suggests, assuming the correctness of the report, Dr. Langer says, "makes it obvious to me that the Germans can also isolate U-235 from ordinary uranium. Working with only one piece of apparatus, they may have one gram of U-235 available for further experiment."

One gram seems an infinitesimal beginning yet, in Dr. Langer's view, again accepting the report, it becomes immediately "the most important scientific data received from Europe since the war started."

Tremendous Power

To speak of a ton of U-235 wiping out life over a wide area takes your breath. "Impossible," you may exclaim. "We cannot develop power millions of times greater than the strongest we know."

True, science may be unable to develop such power, but laboratory workers already know how to extract from nature small bits of unbelievable potency. The miracle has been accomplished several times, on both sides of the Atlantic. How to utilize this new-found power-maker may not be disclosed for several years.

But what is this mysterious element?

U-235, as already stated is uranium, a hard, nickel-white radioactive metallic element of the chromium group. Men who toy with the lethal material call it an isotope, one of two elements which are identical in chemical behavior and distinguishable by a tiny difference in atomic weight.

Today U-235 is so rare and difficult to isolate, one cannot safely predict that next year or the year after we'll begin to see its effects spread across the map. But, given time, the element undoubtedly will guide your destiny and mine. Dr.

Albert Einstein "not long ago told why."

Einstein's Prediction
The mathematical wizard used a formula to express his prediction. E equals M times C square. "What he meant was the amount of atomic energy in a unit of mass may be computed by multiplying the mass by the velocity of light squared. In down to earth language, it means we have in U-235 a possible outlet through which the world one day will draw an immense reservoir of energy, energy now locked within the breast of countless atoms. Except for what the Germans may have isolated, only a small part of a gram has been recovered. Scientists want about 10 pounds before they will be ready for large-scale experiments. It is thought the cosmic ray, so widely studied by Dr. Robert Millikan, president of Caltech, may contain the "slow neutron" which could initiate an explosion of U-235. Dr. Millikan and his associate, Dr. J. A. Anderson, have long haunted mountain tops seeking to entangle the mystery of cosmic rays which in turn may lead them to methods by which the terrific power of U-235 may be controlled.

The oxy-acetylene flame is capable of producing a temperature in the neighborhood of 6,000 degrees F., the highest temperature that is produced outside of the electric arc.

Y. are visiting the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Mason Kerr.

Miss Mary Emma Shaffer returned home Wednesday after visiting for several days with her grandmother, Mrs. John Emerick, Fairhope, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. John A. Topper and daughter, Mary Ann, returned today from a week's vacation at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. James Phillips, Pittsburgh, returned home today after spending the past week with the latter's mother, Mrs. Effie Gaster, Clarence street.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nobel B. Blackman and family will leave Monday for a month's vacation with the pastor's mother at Jonesboro, Ark. They will make the trip by auto, traveling via Cincinnati, Ohio.

Evelyn Somerlot, Cumberland, visiting Miss Jane Brode.

Mrs. Harry Wagner, Swiss Pa., and Mrs. H. N. Van Voo will spend Friday in Paw Paw, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mann, Washington, Indiana, were guests today of Mr. and Mrs. George Grose.

Every Town Has Its Hypochondriacs; Science Still Seeking Explanation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A friend of mine began an address to a medical society by saying he was going to speak about "a patient who is already very familiar to you." Indeed so — the patient he means is familiar to every doctor, no matter what his specialty; surgeon, nose and throat specialist, ear, eye, skin. Over half the practice of the general internist, the gynecologist and the neurologist is made up of these patients. The osteopath and the chiropractor have a chance at nearly all of them at one time or another. In any neighborhood, you yourself know a half a dozen of them.

"The Will to Be Sick"

This patient is sometimes called the neurotic or the hypochondriac or the constitutional inadequate. It is difficult to find any very definite deviation from normal in their organs or tissues or pathology. All their tests show up the same as a normal person's.

Treated, but Still Patients

This type of patient is not well-treated. Forty-four per cent of a series of them had the appendix removed for chronic abdominal pain and continued to be patients. They have many other surgical operations which do not help them.

Seek Scientific Explanation

Medical science is trying always to get some explanation for them. The combination of weakness, loss of appetite and lack of pep suggests a disturbance of secretion from the adrenal glands, because we know that adrenalin, the adrenal gland secretion, tones up the muscles and the nervous system and raises the blood pressure—all likely to relieve the functional disturbances or symptoms present.

Lately a lack of vitamins is a favorite explanation. But this does not cover the case, because these patients usually get plenty of vitamins in their food. In fact, one of the things even the neighbors observe is that in spite of their complaints they are well-nourished and look well-fed.

Psychotherapy helps some. Perhaps the best approach to them is psychological. Most of them have no real interest in life or refuse to assume any. Psychotherapy has done more for them than anything. Mechanical explanations have not proved to be very satisfactory. The problem is one that medical science, or perhaps I should say medical art, is slowly solving. At any rate they are not being treated as badly or as unsympathetically as they used to be.

ARMY "ADMIRAL"

Joseph P. D'Arizzo

Graduated as No. 1 man at Annapolis in 1940, Joseph P. D'Arizzo, of Los Angeles, did not get his naval commission because of a minor eye condition. So he joined the army. Was commissioned a lieutenant, and is known as "Admiral" in the Panama Canal Zone, where he is stationed.

are all right, but by evening they have swollen heavily between the knee and the ankle. Is there any exercise, or special diet, or treatment by injection that would help?"

Answer: Your case needs study. You do not tell me what your phlebitis is caused by. Appendicitis or some other infection? You do not even tell me whether you are a man or a woman. So you see, a doctor who tries to answer medical questions by mail suffers under some disadvantages. Perhaps you have phlebitis which is an inflammation of the veins, or perhaps you have varicose veins, which is a mechanical derangement of the veins, and which can be successfully treated by injection. The symptom of evening oedema of the lower legs is common to both conditions. Any doctor, however, can give you sound advice on these common conditions.

O. L. S.: "Is it harmful to the kidneys to eat too many eggs?"
Answer—Modern nutritional science believes that eggs and meat or other proteins in moderate amount are not bad for the kidneys. In fact, eggs are a part of a well-balanced diet.

Bewildered—"How can an introvert become an extrovert without losing his social standing?"
Answer—Well, I have always felt that the extroverts had the best social standing.

June Brides March down the Aisle To Tune of 'You're in the Army Now'

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

Because a lot of Cupid's darts and Uncle Sam's conscription numbers fell on the same young men, June weddings make interesting news.

Those who guide New York nuptials and trousseaux say that a good many more brides marched to the altar in the first five months of 1941 than in the same period last year, and that many married men in the service. The New York Marriage License Bureau reports 30 per cent more licenses issued in May 1941 than in May 1940.

"Weddings are a lot simpler this year," says Miss Marie Couderet
Brennan, head of Your Wedding
Ambassador, who has supervised hundreds of nuptials in the last decade.

No Time for Fuss

"Lots of brides of men in the service have had only a week to plan for their weddings and have gone on short honeymoons, so there hasn't been much time for fuss. The brides still cling to the traditional wedding sentiment—church ceremony, wedding gown, veil and all that."

"But weddings and receptions are not so splashy and less money is spent. There are a lot more evening weddings too—probably because more young people can be gathered together then and everybody wants to give the bridegroom a good send-off. Often the bridal tables are decorated in the colors and insignia of the bridegroom's division."

"I think the wedding procession will not end in June this year but will go on through July and August. There was a big batch of summer weddings during the last war."

Uniforms Are O. K.

Uncle Sam's defense plans have made a difference in wedding costs too, many bridegrooms saying "I do" in uniform. The girls often choose simple wedding frocks with floor-length or slightly trained skirts instead of elaborate trained gowns. Less fuss is being made over bridal attendants' gowns, and many will be fringed in simple flower-sprigged white.

More pruning is being done on trousseaux. Instead of stewing over them for weeks and stocking up on smart afternoon and evening frocks, brides hurry into shops for a whirlwind shopping session concentrated on sports clothes suitable to a brief honeymoon.

There is a difference in bridal lingerie too. Since many brides hope to live near their husbands in camp, they are passing up lacy frills, which require painstaking laundering, for simple lingerie which is easily washed.

Finally, because so many brides don't know where they are going

June wedding, edition 1941. The bride wears a new version of the practical wedding gown—a demure white lace redingote over a white marquise gown which she can wear later as a wedding frock. The bridegroom's khaki is "right."

Blood-Alcohol Test Urged by Doctor

BALTIMORE, June 26 (P)—Dr.
Henry Wollenweber, assistant state medical examiner, recommends the blood-alcohol test as the "only accurate way of determining drunk-ness" of automobile drivers.

Speaking at the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Maryland pharmacological Association, Dr. Wollenweber said the test distinguished the social drinker from the unquestionably intoxicated—it acquitted those who should be acquitted

Ezra Stone Drafted

NEW YORK, June 26 (P)—Ezra
Stone, 23-year-old actor who plays the role of Henry, a typical American boy, in the radio program "The Aldrich Family," has passed his army medical examination and has been told by selective service officials he would be called into the army within thirty days.

and convicted those guilty of drunken driving.

He said in 400 cases showing drunkenness in the state of Iowa where the test was used "the average driver had a blood-alcohol concentration of 226 milligrams per 100 cubic centimeters of blood."

"This means, Dr. Wollenweber declared, "that he was driving after having consumed no less than five or six ounces of pure alcohol or its equivalent. That would be eleven or twelve bottles of beer, or nearly a pint of whiskey or gin."

Bonds Advance

NEW YORK, June 26 (P)—Railroad issues were far out in front of a generally advancing bond market today.

Publication of additional earnings statements indicating that many roads had the best gross and net return in May since that month in 1930, brought buyers to the rail posts early in the session and it was there that much of the day's total business of $12,128,160 par value, as handled, it was the biggest turnover since May 6 and compared with $8,082,700 on Wednesday.

U. S. governments were quiet but retained a steady undertone. In over the counter dealings some of the longer term tax exempt treasury loans made modest gains.

THEY WERE ABOARD THE ZAMZAM

Their ordeal aboard the Zamzam forgotten, these girls return to New York aboard the Serpa Pinto. Left is Ann O'Neal, 2½, who was in a lifeboat with parents when the tiny craft was shelled. Ann was held afloat until a motor launch came. Right, little Martha Belnap of Detroit was bound for the Belgian Congo with parents when the Zamzam was attacked. Her father is a missionary.

THE MOST EXCLUSIVE CLUB IN AMERICA

... CAN'T SERVE A BETTER BEER THAN A ROADSIDE STAND

BECAUSE NO BEER IS BREWED FROM COSTLIER GRAIN, MALT AND HOPS THAN GUNTHER'S AND GUNTHER SELL AT THE PRICE OF PLAIN EVERY-DAY BEERS.

Throughout the world beer is the beverage of the people. And certainly the poor man deserves as good a glass of beer as the rich man.

In America he can get it NOW.

For Gunther's sell so much beer—all of ONE quality ... and sell most all of it close to the brewery ... that they make real savings.

With these savings they buy the finest grain, the highest-priced malt and the costliest hops ... and still sell their beer for the price of plain, everyday beer.

TODAY NO BREWER IN THE U. S. A. IS USING COST-LIER MALT OR COSTLIER HOPS THAN GUNTHER'S AND

THAT GOES FOR BEERS SELLING HERE FOR 15¢ ... OR 20¢ ... OR ANY PRICE!

All the malt and hops used by Gunther's comes from the top 10% produced! So 9 out of 10 brewers today must definitely use less costly ingredients.

What's more ... scientific controls and brewing equipment not possessed by any other brewer in this part of the country take these extra fine ingredients and make Gunther's a smoother, drier, beer-ier beer.

Try Gunther's today. Let its delicious, dry, thirstquenching flavor prove to you better than words can, what a difference the finest brewing equipment and the finest ingredients make.

Once you've tried it you'll want that Gunther flavor ever after!

PROOF THAT GUNTHER'S USES ONLY THE FINEST
MALT. ONLY 10% OF THE MALT BOUGHT BY ANYWHERE COSTS AS MUCH AS ALL THE MALT GUNTHER USES.

"You are not only using the highest priced Mid-Western Barley Malt but, in our opinion, as fine a quality of Malt that can be used in the manufacture of Beer."

Excerpt from a letter in our files from one of the world's largest malting companies.

PROOF THAT GUNTHER'S USES THE HIGHEST-PRICED HOPS IT IS POSSIBLE TO OBTAIN.

"We are in constant touch with all sources of supply, and are definitely of the opinion that the Gunther Brewing Company, Inc., is using the costliest Hops which can be procured."

Excerpt from a letter in our files from one of the largest importers and dealers in hops.

Gene Autry, Film's No. 1 Star—That's the Verdict Of Writers of Fan Mail

Postman Rings Not Twice but 50,423 Times for Cowboy Actor in One Single Month

By WILLIAM A. RUTLEDGE III
Central Press Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—All the glamor lads and ladies of the film capital must take a back seat to a simple golden-voiced cowboy in popularity. The gauge of popularity in the film town is conceded to be the volume of fan mail.

The main carriers here really know the No. 1 star in the estimation of the American movie-going public. In one month 50,423 fan letters were delivered to Gene Autry at Republic studios, which stands as the all-time high in the Hollywood postoffice.

His nearest rival is Clara Bow, the erstwhile "It" girl of the cinema who drew 40,231 fan letters in a month during the height of her popularity in 1929.

An estimated 80 per cent of his fellow stars and writers in Hollywood have never seen Autry on the screen, seldom is he seen on the screens of the largest cities of the nation. The handsome Texan singer is the idol of the smaller towns and rural districts.

Gen Autry's Rules

On the screen he has an iron-clad rule that he will not strike a man smaller than himself, regardless of the situation conjured up in the script. He never kills anyone in his westerns except in the gravest crisis of self-defense. And, he never kisses the heroine in the fear that his younger admirers would brand him a sissy.

In private life he follows the same exemplary habits. He doesn't smoke or drink, on the screen or off, and is not a glamor boy in any sense of the word. He lives quietly at his ranch in San Fernando valley with his wife, whom he married while she was a Texas schoolmarm.

age his family moved to Ravia, Okla., which permits two states to claim him. His grandfather was a Baptist preacher, who pressed him into choir duty at the age of five, which was just about the time his father was teaching him to ride a horse.

His first step into show business came at the age of 16, when the Fields' Marvelous Medicine show made a one-night stand and took young Gene with them on a two-month tour. All he had to show for this period of employment was enough money to buy a saxophone. Back in Ravia he traded the sax for a "git-lar," and his neighbors soon commented that Gene and his guitar were harder to separate than a tongue from a frosted iron pump handle.

Gene As Telegrapher

Singing and playing did not seem to be lucrative enough for a living and two years later Autry went to work for the Frisco railroad at Sapulpa, Okla., where he became a telegraph operator. There he met Jimmy Long, a singer working for the railroad. The two composed "Silver-Haired Beauty" or "Mine," which has become one of the most popular western ballads.

A tall, rangy stranger stopped in to send a telegram on a cold December night while Gene was singing. The stranger then requested Autry to sing, "They Plowed the Old Trail Under." He told Gene that his voice might get him somewhere if he took it east, "where the money is." After

BOSTON GRID STAR WEDS

Charles F. O'Rourke, sensational all-American football star at Boston College last fall, leaves Immaculate Conception Church in Malden, Mass., with his bride, the former Mary Frances Madden. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis D. Sullivan, former director of athletics at Boston College. The couple will make their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., where O'Rourke has a high school coaching job.

The stranger had left, Gene glanced at the signature to the telegram. It read "Will Rogers." That was sufficient encouragement to Gene to induce him to forthwith pack up and go to New York City in 1929. They told him he was too green. So he went back to Oklahoma and became the "Oklahoma Yodeling Cowboy" on a Tulsa radio station.

From then on in, his career has been one succession of hits and triumphs. After a pre-war tour of England, it was reported to him that little Princess Elizabeth was asked who her favorite film star was, to which she promptly replied, "Gene Autry."

Convict Is Captured

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., June 26 (AP)—The capture of John Dorsey, who escaped from the Moundsville State Penitentiary several weeks ago, was announced by Sheriff J. Howard Myers. Dorsey, sentenced from Berkeley county for breaking and entering, was found hiding in some bushes near a home north of Martinsburg.

Grading Begins

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 26 (AP)—J. B. McLaughlin, commissioner of agriculture, said today already had been started at several livestock markets, will program to get in full swing week. Those to be visited in Bridgeport, Weston, Bucks, Lambertson, Ekins, Gassaway, Alta, Spence, Parkersburg, Point Pleasant.

BETTY DECIDES

She Would Have to Get Married Sometime, but There's Always That Annoying Problem of the "Right Man"

By MARY KING

She would have to get married some time, of course. As she sat at the marble topped lunch counter waiting for her sandwich she com-

She stopped for a second.

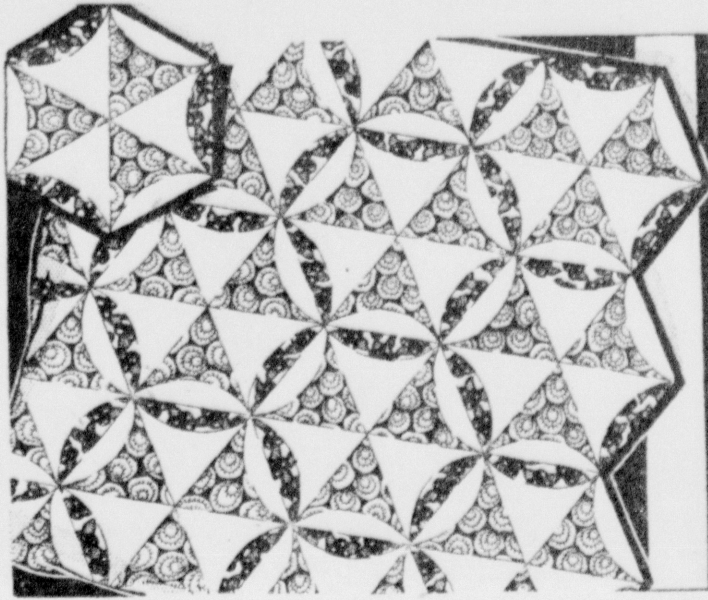

have a home and everything that went with it. If she didn't, it would probably mean 8:30 to 5 from now until infinity taking down what her employer had to say regarding his special brand of pickled herring and putting it back on his letterheads.

It was love at first sight with her and Tom; but soon after she met him the stock market crashed and he had to take over the support of his family. During the years that followed she had plenty of time to think. Tom liked golf and bridge and football games. She didn't. All his friends liked the things he liked. The more she thought about it the more impossible the situation seemed. When she tried to discuss it with him he either became hurt or waved the whole thing aside as being too silly to talk about. So she thought about it alone. Tom was financially able to get married now and wanted her to make up her mind.

Sometimes she thought that if she stopped seeing him she might meet someone else who had her own likes and dislikes. But she had arrived at the conclusion some time ago that if a man reached 35 and wasn't married, he was either slightly psychopathic in some direction or had responsibilities that canceled his eligibility automatically.

Her sandwich came, and with it her coffee. She looked at the silver with a wry face and asked the boy for another teaspoon. The one she had didn't look clean. Eating at messy lunch counters in order to get some shopping done

At noon was one of the things that went along with the pickled herring. The food was indifferent. She ate it as fast as she could, paid her check, and started for the Loop. A picture she wanted to see was advertised at a theater at the corner. She stopped for a second to look at the billboards and then hurried on, thinking that if she were married to Tom she could take walks in the daytime while the sun was shining, and go to a movie in the afternoon if she wanted to.

She was on her way to buy a handbag. She had seen it in a department store window a couple of days ago. When she arrived at the department store she stopped to see if it was still in the window; but the merchandise had been changed.

The handbag department when she got there was mobbed. A sale was going on; everyone was in a hurry, impatient and grabbing with

There's something about girls' legs these days—but it isn't clothes.

FAT GIRLS

Here's A Tip For You

All over America Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free-from-fat figure that seldom fails to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take 1/2 teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast; cut out pastries and fatty meats—go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream—that's all. Do this every morning. In three weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished. Notice also that you've gained in energy, your skin seems clearer, your eyes sparkle with more glorious health—you feel younger in body, keener in mind.

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts in a famous English formula; plain or new effervescent—sparkling-pleasant. You can always get it at Cumberland Drug Co. Try one bottle; lasts 4 weeks and costs but little. If not supremely satisfied, money back—Advertisement

Latest Recruits in Defense Drive? None Other Than U. S. Museums Now Under Fire of Some Art Leaders

By Central Press

NEW YORK — The latest and strangest recruit in Uncle Sam's defense lineup is—the museum!

More than a thousand museums, public or privately endowed, dot these United States. That's four times the number of steel mills. While steel is a prime sinew of war, indispensable to modern armament, our store-houses of culture are being regarded as another type of "arsenal for democracy" to win the war on the ideological front.

From the brand new and mammoth National Art gallery in Washington, down to the smallest one-room trophy collection, the museum world is being rudely jolted out of its tranquility by a verbal bombardment.

Three classes of Americans are taking part in a crescendo public discussion of the role of museums in this unsmiling atmosphere of spiritual as well as military mobilization. First to be numbered are the votaries of art, those men and women of means whose benefactions have established the United States as the art center of the world; second, the public servants in many communities who share the responsibility for exhibiting great works of art in public-supported institutions; and third, the people who today through our museums in larger numbers than ever, despite the competition of the movies, the radio, baseball and the motor car.

Debate Is On

The sudden emergence of the museum as a burning topic of conversation was touched off by verbal broadsides from two nationally known figures.

Oddly enough, it was a museum president who lit the fuse, speaking in behalf of a progressive-minded institution. John Hay Whitney, president of the Museum of Modern Art, put the dynamite in one startling question: "Does it seem strange to you to think of a museum as a weapon in national defense?"

A modern museum, he went on, can be a dynamic force, rather than "a classic graveyard, a static periscope at antiquity, a place to be visited on tiptoe of a rainy Sunday afternoon."

Museums can use the art in their showcases, he said, "to educate, inspire, and strengthen the hearts and will of free men in the defense of their own freedom." In a war of ideologies as well as manpower, he warned, no nation can overlook its spiritual armor.

Robert Moses, the Roman candle of Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia's administration, followed up with a withering blast at several old-style museums. "Musty," he called them. "Aloof, senile, haughty." By their patronizing attitude, he complained, they intimidate visitors. "Let the bars down," he said firmly. And the mayor seconded the motion.

Kent Comments

Rockwell Kent, the artist, chimed in, praising Moses as "the first public official to recognize what is at fault." Kent went on to name three other museums progressive enough to meet the Whitney definition: the Art Institute in Chicago, the Dayton, O., museum, the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Part of the controversy raged over the method of exhibiting collected items. Poor lighting effects, a "stuffy" atmosphere indoors—these were cited by critics as discouraging public inspection.

To this, Marshall Field, whose family established the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago, retorted: "It has never occurred to me to think of a museum as a sideshow or place of amusement."

The critics are replying, in the words of Whitney, "the purpose of a museum is to integrate the great art of today and yesterday with the daily life of a democratic people."

There has been considerable integration in progress for years. Downtailing the local art collection with the educational program has been an accepted museum activity in many American communities. Within the past three decades, there has been a definite increase both in the number and scope of related school-an-museum programs.

But as an example of what Whitney means, he recently announced what the Museum of Modern Art will contribute to Pan-American unity. The federal government will tap the museum's reservoir of motion pictures—its film library that annually is leased to groups all over the country—for exhibition throughout Latin America. The films will be rescored in Spanish and Portuguese.

Movies Influential

"No art form has wider popular appeal or deeper cultural significance," Whitney holds. This particular museum effort is being handled through the Nelson Rockefeller office for co-ordinating the commercial and cultural relations between the American republics. Whitney, in business life chairman of the board of the Preprint Sulphur company, has headed the film library since its inception, and now also directs the motion picture division within the co-ordinators' office.

In the near future, reels depicting every phase of life in the United States will be ready for our Latin American neighbors, clarifying their impressions of us. Equipment for showing the films will be loaned to South American governments and institutions.

While the motion picture thus becomes the first branch of art to be utilized, painting, sculpture, industrial design, the graphic arts and architecture subsequently will take their places in the program. Plans are in progress to prepare several traveling exhibitions of paintings by North American artists, which will be exhibited in leading cities to the south. In these and allied ways, an interchange of hemisphere culture is to be effected. Bringing the museum into the pitiless glare of the spotlight is a striking illustration of what President Roosevelt implied in a recent speech when he said, "More and more things in our life must be evaluated in proportion as they contribute to national defense."

It is too early to appraise the fury of this tempest in the art world. Its repercussions, however, already have reached from the staid museum all the way to the gay night club. Broadway's master impresario, Billy Rose, has just had a painting by the distinguished modern American artist, Thomas Hart Benton, his "Persephone," hung in the Diamond Horseshoe night club. What would Rose do with a museum?

The will of the late Avery Hopwood, novelist, leaves one-fifth of his estate to the University of Michigan for encouragement of creative work in writing.

Hobbies Now . . . Jobs Later, Maybe

Walter H. Stamper, Jr., 17, of Chattanooga, wants to get into radio. So he built station WHEW, which has a 20-foot range, for practice announcing and arranging programs. He has an audience of six.

Clarabelle Lardie, 20, of Traverse City, Mich., is a champion cherry pie maker in a state where good cherry pie makers abound. She defeated 75 older women for the Old Mission Peninsula title.

Robert Tresch, 20, of Puyallup, Wash., was script writer, director, costumer, set designer, music arranger and photographer for a full-length color movie based on a Poe chiller. He calls it a hobby.

All WPA Projects In Garrett County Will Close Soon

Between 200 and 250 Workers Will Be Affected by Move

OAKLAND, Md., June 26—The Works Progress Administration will "fold its tent" in this county on June 30, due to drastic slashing of the funds which the Federal government has provided for the next fiscal year throughout the nation. Of the 200 to 250 people now on the WPA rolls, all will be dropped with the exception of twelve who are employed at the municipal golf course club house, and those who might be transferred to the Savage river dam project. The ones at the golf club have until the last of July. This information was announced from the WPA office here.

Most of the WPA workers here in recent months have been employed on road, street or county sewing projects. At one time there were over 700 on the rolls, but over 300 of these were shifted to the Savage River dam project and the remainder have found employment in defense or other classes of work.

The County Commissioners have received orders from E. F. Hoover, district manager of WPA, to close the county sewing projects at the same time. These projects are located at Oakland and Kitzmiller.

It was revealed yesterday by the County Commissioners that there are eight road projects underway throughout the county, upon which there is WPA labor. Four of these are under supervision of the County Commissioners and four under the State Roads Commission. Of Blaine Giesman, president, intimated that if possible private employment would be used to complete the county roads projects while it was understood, he said, that the State Roads Commission would complete the projects under its supervision.

County road projects are near Bittling, one mile; Mayhew Inn road, toward Swallow Falls, one mile; Bert Smouse road near Loch Lynn, one mile; and the Blooming Rose road, one mile; at Bittling, one mile; Blooming with the religious, one mile; and the road from Gortner toward Loch Lynn, two miles.

The Savage River dam project is considered of importance in the defense program. All records of the Oakland WPA office are being transferred to the Frederick office and James Pollock, in charge of the local WPA work, will in all probability be given some position on the Savage River dam project. All other workers will have to apply through regular channels for employment there.

Vacation Bible School Will Close Friday

Daily Vacation Bible school of the Oakland churches, which has been in progress for the last two weeks, will close its class sessions tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The annual picnic will follow immediately at Terra Alta park.

The annual closing exercise will be held in the Methodist church Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. At that time the children will present a program that will demonstrate the nature of their work in the school. It will be of interest to all parents and those concerned with the religious education of children. Dr. A. B. Leamer, director, will present certificates of progress to those who have earned them.

Measles out heavily into the enrollment this year, yet attendance stayed at about the hundred mark through both weeks. The following were instructors and assistants:

Miss Elizabeth West, Mrs. John Khare, Mrs. William McRobie, Mrs. Newton Coplin, Misses Mary Virginia Bolden, Helen Schlossnagle, Frances Nine, Virginia Lawton, Jacqueline Tower, June Spear, Rev. A. D. Jones and the Rev. Minor Sprague.

Cooking School Held

The second annual cooking school was held this afternoon in the Maryland theater, sponsored by the Westinghouse roaster-vendor. New ideas and methods of cooking were demonstrated. On the screen was shown "This Thing Called Love," starring Rosalind Russell, Melvyn Douglas and Binnie Barnes.

Special gifts included a roaster oven with dishes, two I. E. S. lamps, a waffle iron and five Telechron clocks.

Wedding Is Held

Di Maggio Nearing Sisler's Hit Mark

Ex-Brownie Holds Modern Consecutive Games' Streak

George Sisler . . . record holder

Joe DiMaggio . . . shooting at Sisler's mark

NEW YORK, June 26 — To one side, Rogers, and George, kindly move over, and — while we're at it — you, too, Willie, might get ready to give the young fellow a bit of elbow room on your particular shelf in the hall of baseball fame.

At the moment the young fellow — he's one Joseph Paul DiMaggio of the San Francisco D'Magios — already has passed one of your number in record number of consecutive games in which he has chucked up at least one safe hit.

And now he's after the rest of you. As of today the New York Yankee swatsman has hit safely in thirty-eight consecutive games.

That beats the modern National league champion, Rogers Hornsby, who went hitless after thirty-three happy days — from Aug. 13 to Sept. 19, 1922. Hornsby was then laboring in the colors of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sisler Set Mark

And now Joe has set sail for the mark made by the great George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns and his own league, the American.

George got at least one safety in forty-one straight contests—July 27 to Sept. 17, 1922.

If and when Joe gets by the Sisler record he will find himself with the old-time record set by Bill Dahlen of the Chicago Nationals "way back in 1894. Bill nudged the baseball safely in forty-two contests.

The all-time record — modern and ancient — was set by Wee Willie Keeler, the great Baltimore Oriole who was famous for "hittin' em where they ain't." Willie got at least one hit in forty-four consecutive games during the glorious season of 1897.

DiMaggio began his string on May 15 — when will it end? Everyone hopes not until even Keeler's record has been scratched.

DiMaggio is visiting Mr. Wendell's mother, Mrs. Lella Wendell, South Main street.

The Rev. J. H. Brown, Jr., pastor of Grace Methodist church, and Mrs. Brown visited today in Harrisonburg, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Adams, Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Davis announce the birth of twin daughters at their home on Carroll avenue.

There will be a meeting of Mrs. Banc's Sunday School class of Grace Methodist church at the home of Mrs. LeRoy Green, A street, Friday night.

Harold Smith Budgets Millions In Federal Monies, but Gets Own Allowance from His Wife

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Writer

WASHINGTON, June 26—Director Harold D. Smith budgets the government millions, but his own allowance comes from Mrs. Smith. She is in charge of the family budget and writes all the checks.

"My wife's a better budget director than I," proudly teases Smith, who is becoming known as President Roosevelt's business manager and close personal adviser.

Mrs. Smith does take her job very seriously, and shows a flair for her husband's scientific efficiency. "I spend hours every week on family finance," she explains. "I keep tab on each item, and know pretty well in advance just what is going to be spent for this and that."

Of course, the Smith family, like its government, has faced an expanding budget. There are now four children, and Smith's rapid professional rise also has increased financial demands on the family purse.

"Supplemental Appropriations" Smith and the children have thus learned to be parsimonious with their allowance. If they feel able to justify a "supplemental appropriation," they consult Mrs. Smith with due consideration. She determines if the family budget can take it, she will have no truck with deficits, and red ink is not on her desk.

Smith, himself, often manages to save some extra pennies from his portion, and is as proud as Punch with such a purchase. Maybe, it will be a new hat, a suit, or probably some solid walnut from which he makes lovely furniture in his basement shop. (And he is not above watching sales or hunting bargains, if you please.)

Mrs. Smith, herself, doesn't care a whit about society with a capital "S," as she calls it. But her husband's position opens the doors to top-notch social affairs. (Why, Mrs. Capital Clymer, and there are many, would swap her diamond stomacher for just one of those

Kate Smith Will Dedicate Defense Songs on Radio

Popular Singer Will Have a Busy Day on Network

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, June 26.—Kate Smith is to have a busy day on the radio Friday.

Starting with her usual 11 a. m. period of comment, she will follow with her regular hour at 7 p. m. and conclude with a guest appearance in the defense series, "Proudly We Hail", at 9:30, all on CBS.

The broadcast of her variety hour is the finale for the summer, it is to be replaced by a dramatization of "Claudia," which already is being given an introduction as part of Kate's program.

In "Proudly We Hail", she will join her manager, Ted Collins, to dedicate songs to the cause of defense and to men and women who make it work. Collins is to have a commentating role.

Defense Special

A special Music and National Defense program is being set up for NBC-Blue at 9, to be supplied by the New York WPA orchestra for symphonic compositions. It is made up of 100 musicians, Mischa Elman, noted violinist, will solo. The program is designed to show how music helps mould national morale. Speakers are Howard O. Hunter, WPA

Women Should Not Rely on Marriage As Only Career

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The straws which tell how the wind blows persuade me to write this little homily.

A correspondent who has made two disastrous marriages culminating in divorce writes to ask if it would be advisable to marry a man eight years younger than she is. The man is 22 and he is so head over heels in love with this lady that he is willing to legally adopt her two children by her former marriages.

The young man's salary is not large, and if the marriage takes place there will be a bit of high-powered arithmetic to keep the family going on the scale the willing bride expects.

She wants a good apartment in a good neighborhood, so that her little daughters will make the right social contacts. She's willing for them to go to public schools, but she wants them to have dancing lessons where they'll meet the "right sort." And she confides she doesn't like housekeeping and is a poor cook.

Like Proverbial Camel
The 23-year old boy "madly in love" strikes me as the camel of proverb whose back was broken by the last straw. My correspondent won't like this letter, but my conscience will be clear, and the vision of that twenty-three-year-old lad, who has always lived home with his mother until her death six months ago, won't rise to smite me. Does that poor youngster realize what he's taking on in the way of responsibility? Neither of the lady's

National Highway Future Dark Here, Chamber Reveals

Route 40 Headed for Abandonment as Main Highway, Smith Fears

The future of U. S. Route 40 in this section of the state, plans for the approach to the new airport and the status of plans for a new McCooie-Keyser bridge will be discussed by the Good Roads committee of the chamber of commerce at a dinner-meeting at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Fort Cumberland hotel, according to Harold W. Smith, chamber secretary.

The committee will discuss carefully the Route 40 question, Smith said, because of the danger of abandonment of the highway in this section as a main highway. The highway is designated as "primary defense highway" only as far west as Frederick, he pointed out, and although Pennsylvania has developed its part of the road, little or nothing has been done in this section to improve its admittedly grave defects.

Plans are underway, according to Smith, to tie in Route 40 at Frederick with the Pennsylvania super-highway, leaving the Cumberland area "out in the cold."

Plans for a highway leading from Cumberland to the airport will also be discussed, including the possibility of obtaining federal funds proposed for "access roads" to defense projects of various types. The practicability of utilizing the old canal bed for the highway will likewise be explored.

The committee will seek to determine the status of plans for building a new bridge across the Potomac from McCooie to Keyser. Bids for such a project were sought about three years ago by the Maryland and West Virginia roads commissions, but final action was deferred when it was suggested that the Western Maryland grade crossing on the Maryland side should be eliminated at the same time.

Later, proposals were made that the project should include elimination of the B&O grade crossing in Keyser, and with the consequent conflict of various groups involved, the project has been "marking time" since. It is the hope of the committee that wheels toward getting something done can once be more started.

largely the result of carelessness and ignorance. For a safe Fourth, Perry offers the following suggestions:

To motorists: Get an early start for the holiday week-end trip to get ahead of the congestion and allow plenty of time.

Make a thorough checkup of your tires, brakes, lights and steering gear, for many accidents are the result of faulty equipment.

Keep an eye on the "other fellow," who may cause the accident.

Be sure luggage piled in the back of the car does not obscure rear vision.

Sacrifice that last hour at the beach and leave for home before the crowd.

Remember that driving after dark is many times more hazardous and after dark accidents are frequently more serious.

To swimmers: Bailor your water sports at patrolled beaches. Bear in mind that expert swimmers can be drowned from cramps caused by swimming too soon after eating.

tional system of government is not destroyed."

Must Not Give Up Hope

The American Bar "holds in its hand the fate of the new nation," Maryland's attorneys were told, with the ultimate decision as to the wisdom of laws tending in that direction being "in the lap of the future." This decision, the Cumberland attorney said, "will in due time be made by the American Bar."

"This is our constitution, these are our courts and it was our representatives in Congress who have made these laws," Copper pointed out, adding that "there is no reason to give up hope," since acts of Congress can be repealed if they are wrong and decisions of the Supreme Court can be over-ruled.

The association's nominating committee named Charles Market M. Baltimore to succeed Copper as president. The election will be held Saturday.

Edgar W. Young Dies in Baltimore

Edgar W. Young, 57, general solicitor for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, died last night at his home in Baltimore.

Young, a brother of Joseph W. Young of Cumberland, was well-known here.

Surviving, besides Joseph Young, are another brother, James A. Young, of Annapolis, clerk of the court of appeals; and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Lightner, of Baltimore. His wife died just three weeks ago yesterday.

Memorial Services for Herbert Post Sunday

HANCOCK, Md., June 26 (AP)—Memorial services will be held Sunday for Herbert T. Post who lost his life when the submarine O-9 sank off the coast of New Hampshire on June 20.

The Webster B. Harrison Post 26 of the Hancock American Legion will conduct the service at the Hancock Presbyterian church. The Rev. John Bernard, pastor of the church will participate. A speaker, whose name has not yet been announced, is expected to be included in the Legion's plans for the service.

Post was the only Marylander among the thirty-three who lost their lives when the craft failed to come to the surface after a test dive. He joined the navy in the fall of 1937, chose the submarine service and would have been discharged this fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Post of Hancock.

Vance Rites Conducted

Last rites for Herbert A. Vance, 47, who shot and killed his wife, and committed suicide Monday afternoon, were conducted yesterday afternoon at the Knight funeral home by the Rev. George E. Baughman, pastor of First Methodist church. Interment was made in Zion Memorial Burial Park.

pallbearers were W. Earl Brooks, Francis E. Brode, James E. Leiman, Paul Davey, Earl Willet and Robert C. Bowers.

Gordon Brooks, William Nelson and William Darrow sounded taps, and Robert Sturtz and Henry Winebrenner were color bearers.

Rinker Services Held

Funeral services for James E. Rinker, 57, of Wiley Ford, Va., who died Tuesday, were held yesterday afternoon at the home by the Rev. Vernon N. Shanholtz, pastor of the Brethren church, and the Rev. W. A. Richardson, of Franklin, Va. Interment was made in Great Cacapon (W. Va.) cemetery.

pallbearers were Amos Lambert, Bruce Shanholtz, Harry Dorsey, James Shroat, Walter Lloyd and Harry Whitacre.

$500 Damages Asked By Boyd Sulser

Damages of $500 are asked by Boyd H. Sulser against Charles Bauer in a suit filed yesterday in circuit court growing out of an automobile collision on Bedford road last month.

According to the suit, docketed by C. William Gilchrist, attorney, Bauer's car collided May 11 with an automobile owned by Sulser and operated by Patsy Weiner. Negligence is attributed to Bauer by the plaintiff.

Failure To Pay Judgment Is Charged in Circuit Court

Failure of an automobile insurance company to pay a judgment returned against one of its clients is charged in an annual suit docketed yesterday in circuit court.

The plaintiff is Nettie Garlitz, administratrix of the estate of Henry Broadwater, and the defendant, the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company.

Although details of the case were not explained in the papers filed yesterday, it was understood the action grows out of the death of the plaintiff's brother, Henry Broadwater, who was killed when a truck owned by Randall Beachy ran away in February, 1940, and pinned him against the side of a house in the Cresaptown section.

At the October term of circuit court, a jury returned a judgment of $300 in favor of Mrs. Garlitz and against Beachy. Liability insurance was carried by Beachy with the defendant insurance company, which is charged in the action instituted today by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, with failure to pay the judgment.

Elmer B. Gower has entered his appearance as attorney for the insurance company, and it was indicated that the defense will be the failure of Beachy to co-operate with the company in determining the facts in the case, with emphasis on the alleged conflict between statements made by Beachy to company agents and his testimony at the trial concerning the cause of the fatal accident.

Soldiers Stop Here On Way to the West

The convoy units of United States Soldiers, from Aberdeen Proving Grounds, assigned to the Ordnance department, arrived in Cumberland yesterday afternoon.

The soldiers were traveling in army trucks and one convoy went on to Uniontown, Pa., late yesterday afternoon. Thirty-eight men comprising the second convoy unit ate supper at the Central Y. M. C. A. here and then went to Fairgo to spend the night at the fairgrounds. They will resume their westward trip early today.

Both contingents are on their way to March Field in California.

Assault Is Charged In $1,500 Suit

Assault is charged by Nora Myers in a $1,500 suit filed yesterday in circuit court against Joseph Earl Simms.

Details of the beating allegedly suffered by the plaintiff at the hands of Simms are not revealed in the suit, docketed by Estel C. Kelley, attorney.

The damages are asked as compensation for suffering and pain undergone by the plaintiff, as well as medical expenses and her alleged inability to continue working at her regular occupation.

WORK OF MARYLAND SHOP FOR BLIND IS EXPLAINED TO KIWANIS

The work of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind, Baltimore, and the general program for the rehabilitation of the blind was explained and demonstrated to members of the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon-meeting yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

The speakers were Lamont Hackett, field officer for the Workshop, and Charles M. See, also a Workshop field officer and chairman of the Allegany county delegation in the House of Delegates. Their talks were supplemented by moving pictures of activities at the Workshop.

Both speakers made a plea for co-operation of the sighted public in enabling the blind to be self-supporting, emphasizing the Workshop's slogan, "Help the blind to help themselves, through work."

The blind don't want charity, they said, only a chance to fit themselves for useful work.

See reviewed legislation he sponsored calling for newstands operated by blind persons in state, county and municipal buildings.

where he walked into the dispensary.

During the interview the reporter, knowing that the other three men were dead, asked Ward if he knew how his companions made out. He added that he didn't and nothing more was said about them.

Although Ward appeared anxious to know about his friends, he did not inquire. He apparently knew how "they made out" after 6,900 volts of electricity hit them.

Hospital attendants reported Ward's condition as "good" last night.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

RICHARD HOUGHTON

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"IT'S RAINING HARDER," Richard observed as they halted outside the lodge to put up their umbrellas. "Maybe we ought to wait a while before we go home."

"That's just an excuse to stay and play with those model trains," his father told him sharply, pushing his own umbrella against the storm and starting down the driveway toward the road. Richard, grumbling, followed.

Large trees lined the way. Henry knew that the mysterious man who fled from the lodge could easily hide behind one of the tree trunks in the semi-darkness if he wanted revenge for the scare they had given him. The little clerk stayed in the middle of the road.

He imagined sinister movements on either side. The wind whistling through the leaves and rubbing branches together sounded at times like voices or like the stealthy movement of a body through the underbrush.

Half way home they emerged from the trees. The open fields were reassuringly empty. Lighted windows of the Baker farmhouse were reminders of friends.

"You run on home and get to bed," Henry told his son. "I'm going to stop in and see the Bakers a few minutes."

"Aw, gee! I'd rather wait for you."

"Go on. Don't tell me you're afraid of the dark? It's only a quarter mile—and you're 15 years old!"

"Okay, but if anything happens you'll be sorry!"

Henry smiled as he turned into the Baker yard. The smile died as he puzzled over the unpleasant task ahead of him. How would he question Susan Baker about the murder? How would he bring up the subject of Laurence Harkness?

Mr. Baker opened the door, looking at him over the top of reading glasses. He was in his shirt sleeves, wearing slippers, a newspaper in his hands.

"Oh, it's you, Henry! I hoped it was Susan. That is—we're expecting her."

"She isn't home?"

"No, she went to the hospital to see Mr. Spinnell. Come in, come in! Don't stand there in the wet."

Henry folded his umbrella and removed his rubbers. "I—I suppose she'll be in soon?"

"Ought to be here now," Mr. Baker called over his shoulder to his unseen wife. "It's Henry Potter, Ma. Better put on the coffee pot."

"Don't trouble, I'm only stopping a few minutes."

"What brings you? Not a social call in this kind of weather?"

Mrs. Baker knew the answer. "It's those dreadful murders," she said as her husband ushered Henry into the kitchen and she put the coffee pot on the stove to re-heat.

"Susan has been so upset! Seems as though everyone in the model railroad club has been here to see her. How could she know who did it, Mr. Potter?"

"I'm sure she doesn't have any guilty knowledge," Henry said, accepting a welcome seat near the stove, "but each innocent member of the club is curious to know everything the others saw. I'm sort of—well, investigating it myself. I thought we'd talk it over. No telling what perfectly innocent observations may fit together into a clue."

Mr. Baker returned to his rocking chair, but laid his newspaper and glasses aside on the table. "Queer outfit, that model railroad club. How did it start?"

Henry shook his head. "I don't know, but people do queer things. Playing with trains probably doesn't seem as silly to them as knocking a little white ball around a golf course."

"That's the very comparison Susan made!" her mother observed. "Of course, in Susan's case, I can see a good reason. She loves art. She's making miniature people for the railroad. Her work really is lovely. I'll show you some examples. She does a large part of the work at home."

From an adjoining room Mrs. Baker returned with a tea tray on which stood a dozen dolls scarcely more than one inch tall. "Notice the costumes! Men in work clothes, women dressed for shopping tours. I tell her she'll ruin her eyes, but she loves it!" The proud mother's smile faded. "Now it has come to this awful end! It is the end, I suppose. The model railroaders won't meet again."

Henry had his doubts. "Tobystylists are hard to stop. There have been murders on golf courses, you know. Laurence Harkness and Hans Svenson are in the clubroom right now. They say they're looking for clues, but they can't keep their hands off those remarkably life-like trains."

Mr. Baker looked closely at Henry. "You seem quite interested."

"Me? Why should I be interested? They're just toys."

Mr. Baker sighed. "I wish they didn't have such fascination for men. I don't think it looks right for Susan to go to those meetings where there always are more men than women. If Mother would only go along with her..."

"I may at that!" said Mrs. Baker as she poured coffee for Henry.

"Susan is too much of a flirt. All innocent, of course, but people will talk. And she herself admits that Laurence Harkness—well, for a married man he takes her flirting too seriously."

The telephone rang. Mrs. Baker went into the next room to answer it.

"Perhaps," suggested Henry to the girl's father, "you'd like to go to the meetings. There are more angles to model railroading than you'd imagine."

"Me! I wouldn't go near the place!"

Susan's mother returned. Her face was grave. "Speak of the devil!" she said. "Susan says Laurence Harkness telephoned the hospital and asked if she would stop by Wildwood lodge on her way back in the car and give him a ride home. I tried to tell her it wasn't the thing to do, but she said she's already promised. She won't be home for another half hour."

"Laurence is all right," her husband assured her. "I've known him a long time. I'd rather she'd be with him than alone."

Henry downed the last of his coffee. It warmed him. "Guess I'll go," he announced, rising. "If she won't be here for another half hour I might as well see her some other time. It wasn't important. I just happened to be going past."

They both said a regretful goodbye to him at the door as he put on his rubbers and opened the umbrella. The south wind was blowing stronger. He had to lean farther over and push directly against it as he headed for home.

The Baker barn was a short distance ahead of him to the left, the black silhouette of its hay hoist reaching toward him. Before Mr. Baker extinguished the yard light Henry saw something move beside the wall on the barn near the ground. "I should think he'd keep his cows indoors in weather like this," Henry mumbled to himself.

A horrifying thought struck him. Suppose it wasn't a cow? Suppose it was a man!

The road passed within a hundred yards of the barn. Although the lighted windows of his own house were visible now, Henry continued to stare at the dark barn. He saw a tiny flash, felt his umbrella spin in his hands. He stumbled, fell.

He lay in the mud trembling. The bullet from the gun had missed his head by a fraction of an inch. It had "zinged" through the umbrella, breaking one of the ribs.

"Why is he shooting at me? What have I learned that makes me dangerous to him?"

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Distributed by Central Press-Association)

CATMINT FROM CUTTINGS

Nepeta Mussini, the European catmint which adds such interest to our gardens with its soft lavender flowers and gray green foliage can be propagated most easily by cuttings.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the best time to take cuttings is when the stem breaks easily, as it is bent. When it crushes instead of snapping, the stem is too young. If it bends without breaking, it is too old for good cuttings.

Use cuttings of the new growth and cut one-fourth to one-half inch below a leaf or pair of leaves. Remove the lower leaves and plant the cuttings in sand, in a coldframe. Protect the cuttings for the first few weeks against drafts and sun. Keep the sand moist and allow ample ventilation.

When taking cuttings, plant them immediately or they will wilt down. It is a mistake to try to keep cuttings from wilting by placing them in a pail of water, as this often does more harm than good.

The peachmond is a hybrid fruit between the peach and almond. It was originated in Mexico.

Russo Hurls One Hit Game against Browns

DiMaggio Keeps Up Continuous Hitting Streak

McQuinn's Homer Spoils Perfect Game as Yanks Win 4 to 1

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP)—Lefty Russo pitched a one-hit game today and the New York Yankees continued their prized hitting streak as they bashed the St. Louis Browns 4 to 1.

Russo mowed down the Browns about a hit for six straight innings before losing his bid for a perfect game when he gave up a home run to George McQuinn in the seventh inning.

The 26-year-old southpaw faced twenty-eight men, one over the minimum, and let no one except McQuinn get past first base.

He issued two walks, one in the second and another in the third inning, and each time double plays saved the runners.

Eden Auker limited the Yankee batters to six hits, but never had a chance to win. In the second inning he walked Charley Keller, and Bill Dickey and Joe Gordon followed with successive singles for a run. In the fifth Gordon tripped and scored on a single by Phil Rizzuto.

Tom Henrich led off with his thirtieth homer in the sixth inning to send the Yankees' record streak to thirty-five four-baggers in twenty-one consecutive games. In the eighth Joe DiMaggio slashed a double into left field for a run and made this the thirty-eighth straight line in which he has hit safely.

Olewine in Finals Of Tennis Tourney

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 26 (AP)—Olewine, husky sophomore in the University of Southern California, battled his way into the finals of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament today in a hot and fifty minutes struggle with Canning of the University of California.

The scores were 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3. Olewine, who two years ago won United States Intercollegiate on the same Merion Cricket court, will meet the winner of tomorrow's match between Joe Hunt of Navy, and unheralded Joe Davis, the Vanderbilt University mite.

Canning, another dark horse in the fifty-fifth Annual Tournament, simply wilted under the blazing sun after winning a brilliant first set.

He played a hard, smashing game break through Olewine's service take the opener but seemed to tire himself out in the effort. The Southern California star, seeded No. 1, never was headed after Canning to a tie.

unt, who lost in the finals last year to Don McNeill, remains a favorite to win the title this year but he'll have to beat the mame's giant killer to do it. Nashville opponent has eliminated two seeded players already.

erry Dee and Jim Wade of Stanford, defending champions in the doubles, advanced to the semi-final with a 6-1, 4-6, 6-1 victory. William Gifford and Ken Rano of Cornell.

ewine and Canning also moved into the doubles. The Trojan of Olewine and Charley Mattel eliminated Warren Christner A. Fincher of Texas, 6-1, 6-8 while Canning and Bob Hippen of California defeated Frankner and Cliff Berg, Utah, 6-2.

Did Davis Make Mistake In Getting Regenerated?

NEW YORK, June 26—It takes a strong stomach to assimilate some of the stuff that is being pulled by tear-jerkers and self-educated psychologists in connection with the case of Private Al Davis, anti-aircraft, formerly the worst boy in Brooklyn, now "regenerated."

Private Davis is not to blame. It's my guess that the private would like to be regenerated a little more quietly, but the boys in the boxing game insist on doing it with plenty of noise and gestures. They forgive him every chance they get, provided there is a crowd on hand to watch.

Private Davis must have been a hell of a fighter if he gave offense to all the people who are forgiving him now. He cannot walk down cauliflower alley without some character grabbing him by the sleeve and saying, "It's all right, Bummy. We're willing to forget."

If I were Private Davis, I could reply, "Then why don't ya?"

Which Is Worse?
The private, you know, is fighting Fritz Zivic, the welterweight champion, on July 1. He lost his head in his last fight with Zivic and stirred up the righteous horror of the boxing mob. Then he joined the army and stirred up the righteous forgiveness of the boxing mob. Right now the private is now sure which is worse.

The height of ham was achieved last week at the Conn-Louis fight by Harry Balogh, the silver-tongued announcer. Harry has a nice gift for drivel. Luring Private Davis to the middle of the ring around to make sure all the customers were in their seats and then forgave the private with a solemn look and a tender, manly handshake.

That made it clear how Mr. Balogh stood. He forgave the kid with a heavy hand. He thereupon instructed Private Davis to salute the crowd four times, facing East, South, west and North in turn, to show how sorry he was. Greatly embarrassed, the private did so.

"Ah, that's fine, Al, that's fine," said Mr. Balogh with his hand on his heart. "That's very beautiful."

There was not a dry eye in the house. At least, there was not a dry eye in the Balogh family.

The scene was so good, to Mr. Balogh's way of thinking, that it probably will be repeated at every opportunity—and Private Davis will be sorely tempted to forget himself and punch Mr. Balogh in the snoot, as in the old days in Brooklyn.

Zivic's View Unsentimental
There is only one guy who takes a cold, unsentimental view of Private Davis. That is Mr. Zivic, his opponent of next week. As far as Mr. Zivic is concerned, this fight with the private is a nice, wholesome financial touch. To show his appreciation, he will endeavor to knock the private's teeth out, one at a time or in Pairs, depending upon the demands of the situation.

The champ is a very practical man. He showed that in his last fight with Private Davis. Nobody in the house was less surprised, confused or aroused than Mr. Zivic when Davis suddenly went berserk and began to throw low punches.

In the first round of that battle, Mr. Zivic did everything in his power—in a quiet way—to ruffle his choleric young adversary. He tied up Davis in close and jolted him with uppercuts. He clipped him lovingly on the break. He ground his glove into Davis's eye.

Davis came leaping out of his corner for the second round and went for Zivic with no thought of the late Marquis of Queensberry, who was already revolving slowly in his grave. Davis aimed low punch after low punch, slugging with fury. However, very few of these blows got home. You would have thought Mr. Zivic was prepared for something like this. He turned his eyes upward with a look of saintly suffering, which could not fail to attract attention, and ended the attack very nimbly. They stopped the fight. Mr. Zivic proceeded to his dressing-room undamaged.

Mr. Zivic, in short, is a cool number. Private Davis was formerly a hotheaded number, but constant regeneration and forgiveness have cooled him off. If they both go in there cool, Mr. Zivic should win with ease.

Maybe the private made a mistake getting regenerated.

Washington Wins 16 Inning Game From Chicago

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—

Jimmy Bloodworth Drives in Buddy Lewis with Winning Run

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Jimmy Bloodworth's single to right with two out in the sixteenth inning scored Buddy Lewis from second base to give Washington a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox today in their second straight extra inning game.

Edgar Smith, who traveled the route for the White Sox, walked Lewis to open the sixteenth. After Cecil Travis sacrificed and Mickey Vernon filed to Mike Kreevich in short center, George Case was purposely passed to get to Bloodworth, who promptly broke up the game.

Ken Chase went twelve innings for Washington before Manager Bucky Harris lifted him. Alejandro Carrasquel took over in the thirteenth and checked Chicago with two singles until the Nats located the winning punch.

Washington had a 2-1 lead going into the eighth inning, but Kreevich singled to open that inning and scored from first when Lewis fumbled Taft Wright's single.

Wilkinsons Win First Half Flag

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—

Wilkinson Grocers won the first-half championship of the Allegany County Softball League yesterday by defeating Potomac Valley 7 to 3 in the playoff contest at Crystal Park.

Wilkinsons scored three runs in the first inning on two walks and two singles. They added four more in the fourth on three doubles a single and an error.

Potomac Valley scored a run in the fourth on an error, a walk and a wild pitch and added two more in the sixth on a walk, sacrifice and three singles.

Scaletta hurling for the first-half champs allowed five hits and struck out eight Potomac Valley batters. Batteries were: Wilkinsons—Scaletta and Stoitsmyer; Potomac Valley—Kisamore and Kemp.

North End Club Defeats Ridgeley

The North End Social and Athletic softball team defeated the Ridgeley Germans 12 to 7 yesterday afternoon in a game played at Ridgeley.

Each club scored three runs in the first inning, but the North Enders sewed up the game in the second inning when they scored eight runs, they added another in the sixth. Ridgeley scored its fourth run in the second and added three more in the third but could not overcome the big lead the Cumberland club made in the first two innings.

This afternoon the North Enders will meet Local 1874 at 8:30 on the North End diamond.

The line score:
NORTH END 300 600 6-12 13 4
RIDGELEY 211 600 6-1 4 3
Batteries: Pines, Waltz and Skismore, C. Glone and Robinson.

BILL POLAND KNOCKS OUT HARRY BOBO

BALTIMORE, June 26 (AP)—Slugging Bill Poland of New York knocked out Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh, in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout tonight.

Poland weighed 198, spotting the Pittsburgh negro four rounds. Poland and Bobo clashed in the feature fight of a three-star card program at Baltimore stadium, with each battle won by a knockout.

Lee Savoid, 190 of Des Moines, put King Kong 195, of Baltimore away in the sixth, and Pat Comiskey, 219, of Orange, N. J., took only two rounds to finish Jack Cunningham, 195, of Detroit.

In a six-round engagement, Joey Silva, 136, of New York, won a decision over Pete Galliano, 139, Baltimore.

Semi-finals Reached in Golf Championship

COLUMBUS, O., June 26 (AP)—

Ray Brownell, Stanford sophomore, and Pacific Coast intercollegiate king, who stands six feet three inches, and his em a mile. He plays—

Danny Carmichael, Columbus youth who was graduated from Princeton a few days ago. Danny has never swung a club for Princeton, but explained the basketball team and pitched on the baseball team.

Otto Greiner, University of Baltimore 1941 graduate, former Maryland amateur and intercollegiate, and Middle Atlantic amateur champion, who plays—

Earl Stewart, Louisiana State junior, tourney medalist and favorite who is four over par for nine-hundred holes.

Brownell reached the semi-finals by beating Marshall Carlson of Toledo 2 and 1, after the Ohio Conference champ had eliminated Warren Berl of Stanford, runner-up for the National title in 1938, 3 and 1.

Carmichael whipped two Stanford stalwarts today, upsetting Charley Finger, 5 and 4, and then knocking out Dee Repligie 2 and 1 in the quarter-finals.

Greiner got into the semi-final the hard way, being compelled to (Continued on Page 24, Col. 1)

Bob Feller Wins Sixteenth Game of Season

Cleveland Comes From Behind to Defeat Boston

Feller Replaced by Clint Brown in Eighth; Indians Win 10 to 8

BOSTON, June 26 (AP)—After Bob Feller spotted the Red Sox a 5-1 lead in the third inning, the Cleveland Indians battled from behind to give their great righthander his sixteenth victory of the season, 10-8, today before a 24,000 crowd at Fenway Park.

Feller, who gave the Red Sox 11 of their 12 hits, including homers by Lop Finney and Bobby Doerr, was replaced by Clint Brown in the eighth, however, when, with two out, Finney hit a two-bagger.

The Indians clinched the game with a six-run rally in the seventh when they battered starter Mickey Harris and Mike Ryba for six hits, including two-beggars by Ray Mack and Hal Trosky, to pull into a 10-5 lead. The Soxers, however, collected three more rallies in their half of the seventh when Doerr homered with two on.

Conn Reaches New High In N.B.A. Ratings

MILWAUKEE, June 26 (AP)—Billie Conn, the Irish boy from Pittsburgh who did such a neat job against Joe Louis recently, and Lou Nova, the youngster who hopes to do even better in September, reached a new high in the National Basketball Association's ratings today.

For the first time since Louis won the world's heavyweight title, the NBA reported, there are fighters who deserve to be rated as logical contenders for the champ's crown. They named Nova and Conn "logical contenders" in quarterly rankings released today.

Buddy Bear and Abe Simon, two of the victims of Louis' smashing fists in recent months, were listed by the NBA as "outstanding boxers," along with Alberto Lovell, the big Argentine heavyweight.

Only one change in championship rankings was noted since the NBA's last listing in March. It was Gus Lesnevich, recognized as the light heavyweight title holder with Jimmy Webb, Anton Christofordis, Jimmy Brins, Len Harvey and Tami Maurelio as logical contenders for his title.

Kifers Canaries Defeat Pekin

LONACONING, June 26 (AP)—Kifers Canaries of the Georges Creek Athletic club of Pekin, near here, stopped the East end softball club of Probstburg, last night in a game of softball by the score of 14-9. The Canaries have not lost a game in league competition in the Sportsmen Softball League.

Heavy hitters for the Canaries were Hyde and Johnson, each with three hits out of four trips to the plate. One of Johnson's hits was a homer. Cook was best for Probstburg, with three out of four.

Brooklyn Ties St. Louis Cards For League Lead

Dodgers Wallop Boston 11 to 2 as Cardinals Are Idle

BROOKLYN, June 26 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers battered the Boston Braves 11 to 2 tonight, scoring seven runs in the third inning and advanced into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for first place in the National League.

It was the sixth win in six games for the Dodgers over the Braves this season. Until Boston (allied twice in the eighth stanza) it had been held scoreless for four innings by Brooklyn.

Although losing a shutout on Gene Moore's single with the bases loaded in the eighth, Whitlow Wyatt held the Braves to five hits and achieved his eleventh victory of the season against four defeats.

The Dodgers unleashed a 14-hit assault on three pitchers. Al Jarvis, Boston's starting hurler, was charged with the loss.

Brooklyn put together three hits and a error for two runs in the second inning, collected six safeties in their seven-run uprising in the third and finished with two tallies in the eighth on Dixie Walker's fourth hit.

This was the day's only game in the National League. It drew a crowd of 28,874.

Philadelphia Downs Tigers

PHILADELPHIA, June 26 (AP)—Indian Bob Johnson gave the Detroit Tigers a lesson in hitting today as he drove in six runs to help the Athletics take an 8 to 4 decision over the American League Champions.

The A's centerfielder slugged out two home runs, and two singles in five trips to the plate. The homers were his fifteenth and sixteenth and tied him with Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees for the league lead.

Johnson's first home run came in the first inning, off pitcher Phil Croucher. He followed it with a second homer in the second, off pitcher Croucher. He followed it with a third homer in the third, off pitcher Croucher. He followed it with a fourth homer in the fourth, off pitcher Croucher. He followed it with a fifth homer in the fifth, off pitcher Croucher. He followed it with a sixth homer in the sixth, off pitcher Croucher.

Three Men Electrocuted near Short Gap, W. Va.

One Man Survives High Voltage of Electric Wire

Pipe Being Lifted from Well Contacts Line Directly above

Tragedy struck yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock near Short Gap, W. Va., when three men were electrocuted and another miraculously survived the shock of 6,900 volts of electricity.

The dead are Samuel Maxey, Jr., 39-year-old Celanese worker, Raymond Emmart, 29, Celanese worker, and W. M. J. Daniels, 53, farmer. Only survivor is James Ward, 29, also a Celanese worker. All were residents of the Short Gap section.

The men were removing a rusty pipe from a water well and unaware of the wire above them they heaved the pipe high into the air to clear the well when it contacted a high voltage line of the Potomac Valley Light and Power Company.

According to neighbors, Emmart and Daniels dropped on the spot fatally injured. Maxey and Ward tumbled about twenty feet to the lawn of Maxey's home.

Wife Discovers Bodies
Mrs. Maxey discovered the bodies and cried out for a neighbor, who was plowing in a nearby field to come help her. The plowman rushed into Short Gap and E. W. Penner and Paul D. Moreland brought Maxey to Memorial hospital here where he was pronounced dead upon arrival. Maxey died just before they reached the hospital the men said.

Ward was taken to Allegany hospital by neighbors and walked unaided into the building. Attached at the hospital said he appeared "sleepy" but apparently was getting along satisfactorily.

Mrs. Maxey was grief-stricken and could give no details of the tragedy. Maxey's father, Samuel, Sr., was summoned and he too was grief-stricken but said that in his opinion the wire "should not have been constructed directly over the well site and should have been erected higher."

Maxey was wearing gloves at the time of the accident and this probably caused him to take the shock better than the other two men who died instantly. Ward told a News reporter that he had hold of one end of the pipe and apparently did not receive the full load of electricity.

Faces Turn Purplish-Black
Emmart, a powerfully built man was working without gloves and the rust from the pipe burned into his hands. Both he and Daniels were purplish-black in the face from the shock of electricity which coursed through their bodies. Neighbors covered their bodies until an ambulance arrived about 7 p. m. and removed them to a local hospital for further examination upon request of relatives.

Maxey is survived by his widow, Mrs. Theodore Roth Maxey, two sons, Samuel E. Maxey III, and Robert Jackson Maxey, and his father, Samuel Maxey, Sr.

He had only recently bought the property upon which he made extensive improvements.
Emmart is survived by his widow, Mrs. Susan Hanft, Emmart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Emmart, and a brother, Glenwood, all of the Short Gap section; and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Rita Pringle, of Neal's Run, W. Va.

Daniels is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Clyde Abe, RFD Keyser, W. Va., Mrs. Elmina Deamler, Port Ashby, W. Va., and Mrs. Daisy K. Long, of Short Gap. He is the son of the late Hiram and Susan Daniels. The body will be taken to the Daniels homestead at Short Gap today.

The body of Emmart will be taken to his home today.
The case was investigated by Joseph Hodgson, prosecuting attorney for Mineral county, and C. V. Barnard, Ridgeley chief of police. Hodgson said no inquest was planned.

Police Will Not Receive Increases In Next Pay Checks

The NEWS learned last night from Police Commissioner James Orr that members of the Cumberland Police Department will not get the $10 per month increase in salaries authorized by the recent session of the legislature when they receive their pay checks next week for the last half of June.

While the bill called for the increase to become effective June 1, Orr said they have not been paid yet because the council has not made any provision to provide additional money for his department to take care of the increase.

The commissioner said the men will get increases dating back to June 1 but that he cannot pay out money for which no provision was made in the budget. He said that at last Monday's council meeting Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, was instructed to make a survey of city finances and see if he can find where money can be obtained to pay the increases to the policemen as authorized by the legislature.

Orr said last night he would make every effort to have additional funds transferred to his department early next month so he can include increases in the policemen's checks July 15.

Survivor Tells How Companions Were Electrocuted

James Ward Relates Story of Accident near Short Gap

The detailed story of an accident in which three of four workmen were electrocuted yesterday afternoon near Short Gap, W. Va., was related last night at Allegany hospital by the lone survivor.

The survivor, James Ward, 29, of the Short Gap section, a Celanese worker, lay surrounded by worried relatives in his third-floor room when a NEWS reporter approached. He apparently was telling them how it felt to be alive.

Thinking it best to wait until Ward was alone, the reporter left and returned after visiting hours. Ward, who seemed to be wondering what happened to his fellow-workers, looked up and spoke as the reporter walked to the side of his bed and introduced himself.

Talks with Reporter

"How do you feel," the reporter asked.

"Pretty good," Ward replied. "They have hot water bottles all around me."

With formalities over with, Ward then started to tell his story of what happened at the home of Samuel Maxey, Jr., 30, about ten miles from Ridgeley, W. Va.

"Ray Emmart passed Maxey's house earlier in the afternoon and saw him working around a water well," Emmart asked him if he needed any help and Maxey answered he could use two more men. Later Emmart picked up me and Daniels and we headed for Maxey's.

"We started to raise a thirty-foot pipe out of the well—it was rusty and didn't bring the water up properly. When it happened—we all had our hands on the wet pipe. I was on the end."

"I remember it hitting me—that's all. But before I was knocked out I saw the others fall away from the pipe. One by one. I don't remember much. When I came to I saw the others lying around."

Felt Sleepy and Dizzy
Ward said he felt "sleepy and dizzy" when he awoke. He remembered that Ezra Grapes, of Short Gap, brought him to the hospital. (Continued on Page 20, Col. 3)

Five of the fifteen draftees who were sent to the induction station Wednesday from Local Board No. 3 were rejected. They are John W. Mitchell, Robert T. Brown, William D. Young, Kelley H. Varner, and Ralph E. Livingood.

Four Drivers Fined On State Charges

Arrested June 12 on the National highway, Linwood Priddy, of Ellerslie, was fined $10 and costs yesterday in trial magistrates court for displaying markers issued to another motor vehicle. He received a suspended $1 fine on payment of seventy-five cents costs for driving without a registration card.

Rose Mary Simpson, 104 Decatur street, paid $10 and costs after she pleaded guilty to driving without a license Wednesday on the National highway. Homer Ervin, of RFD 4, Keyser, W. Va., was fined $10 and costs for allowing an unlicensed person to operate a motor vehicle Wednesday on the National highway.

Corp. John H. Doud, of the state police, preferred the charge.
Another driver, Charles R. Boyd, 545 North Mechanic street, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of failing to give a hand signal. He was apprehended Tuesday on Route 35 by State Trooper B. C. Mason.

Divorce Suit Utilizing 18-Months Desertion Period Is Filed Here

Wait of Three Years Was Required Under Old Legislation

One of the first divorce suits here taking advantage of the new law requiring desertion to cover only an 18-month period was filed yesterday in circuit court.

Until this month, when legislation passed by the 1941 General Assembly took effect, desertion had to continue for three years before an absolute divorce could be served.
The plaintiff in the case is Mrs. Pearl Rizer, of Frostburg, who asks an absolute divorce from Bert A. Rizer, also of Frostburg. The bill of complaint, filed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, says the couple was wed at Kitzmiller November 1, 1925, and lived together until July 17, 1939. Custody of two children and payment of counsel fees and alimony are asked.

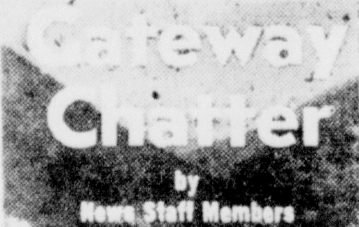

Dissolution of a marriage contracted nearly thirty years ago is asked in another suit docketed yesterday.

MAKING THEMSELVES AT HOME—ALTHOUGH THAT'S FAR AWAY

Tea for three—or it may be coffee, or hot chocolate. The main thing is that two service men a long distance from their home towns are meeting one of the girls who live near their camp. This picture will be multiplied by 250 when that many service clubhouses are set up through the nationwide United Service Organizations drive for $10,765,000. The clubs will be places where men in all the armed forces can meet their new friends, or join in group recreation to relax from their day's grind. Workers are now busy in an effort to raise $16,000, Allegany county's share in the nation-wide drive.

All pedestrians will do well to read the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's Slogan for this week which follows:

"Jay walking is always a short cut to the hospital. Cross at intersections."

Two Men Injured As Auto Strikes Bridge Railing

Weber and Robertson Discharged from Hospital after Treatment

Two textile workers were injured and a third person apparently escaped injury last night about 8:15 o'clock when the car in which they were riding crashed against the steel guard railing along Blue bridge, on the Maryland side, shortly after reaching the "hump."

William Weber, 24, of 31 Ridgeway Terrace, driver of the car, suffered a lacerated hip, and Isaiah Robertson, 21, of 16 Weber street, was cut about the nose and right cheek. Both were treated at Allegany hospital and discharged.

Charles Williams, 21, of Lindner ville, also a textile worker, told hospital attendants his jaw hurt, but he refused to be examined.

Weber and Robertson were taken to the hospital by Vincent Bridges, of Flintstone, who reported he crashed against the rear of Weber's machine after it struck the guard railing.

Occupants of the Weber car said they were blinded by the bright lights of an approaching machine. Officer John G. Powers investigated but preferred no charges.

Young Couple Hurt In Auto Accident On Polish Mountain

A young couple was admitted early this morning (Friday) to Allegany hospital following an automobile accident on the East side of Polish mountain.

Most seriously hurt were Miss Elsie Brant, 16, of 13 Laing avenue. Both her legs were broken. She also suffered abrasions about the body.

Frederick G. Potts, 26, of 542 Central avenue, suffered facial lacerations and shock.

Hospital attendants were unable to say how the accident occurred but reported state police investigated.

Concentration of Power in Federal Government Discussed by Capper

Local Attorney Addresses Maryland State Bar Association

The question of whether the recent trend toward concentration in the federal government of powers previously reserved to the states endangers America's constitutional form of government was posed last night before the Maryland State Bar Association by its retiring president, Walter C. Capper, of Cumberland.

Speaking at the association's forty-ninth annual convention in Atlantic City, Capper traced the development of "the new nationalism," which he described as "a process whereby the federal government is taking unto itself the solution of all problems which have any bearing upon the social security or national interests of the people of the whole nation."

New Trend Of Thought
"If this is a trend in thought or philosophy which will not eventually lead to the complete transformation of our government, all well and good," Capper said, "but if the contrary, it should be corrected before it is too late."

"The equilibrium of our dual form of government has been disturbed by recent federal laws and supreme court decisions, the speaker went on, pointing out that "great statesmen and judges of the past" had stressed the "absolute necessity of maintaining that dual form of government in order to preserve our government as set up by the constitution."

"The constitution was not intended to create a federal government which would completely submerge the states," Capper told his fellow attorneys.

"So many laws having this tendency have been passed by Congress in the last ten years that the average lawyer has found it almost impossible to keep pace with this legislation."

Capper cited the National Labor Relations act, the Bituminous Coal act, the Social Security act, the Fair Labor Standards act and various agricultural acts among laws which "have a tendency to appropriate and withdraw from the states rights heretofore exercised by them."

Take Away Prerogatives
"In many cases they take away these prerogatives actually, and in other cases by a process of ad contribution and taxation, they seek to control state action in the particular field involved."

Much of this legislation, he added, "is said to have been written by experts or college professors seeking to carry out so-called advanced theories of thought and life without sufficient opportunity being afforded to Congress and the people to understand the effect of such legislation."

Capper, credited, however, some of this legislation with accomplishing "good results" and added that "much of it has been useful in tiding this country over the worst depression in its history."

"But what of the effect it has had and will have upon our constitutional form of government?" Capper asked. "Whether we are at war or in peace, we should endeavor to see that our constitution is maintained."

Two Persons Are Hurt in Accident

Mrs. Myra B. Day and Her Granddaughter Elaine Scott Injured

Two persons were injured and two others were shaken up yesterday about 2:15 p. m. in an automobile accident on the National highway, near the entrance of the All Ghan Shrine club, while en route to Allegany hospital to visit a relative.

According to state police, John Day, 72, of Leesville, Ohio, was attempting to pass a car which suddenly pulled out in front of him and caused his machine to crash against an embankment and overturn. Day was not hurt.

Day's wife, Mrs. Myra B. Day, 61, suffered a badly lacerated right hand and a right shoulder injury, and their granddaughter, Elaine Scott, 11, also of Leesville, received abrasions about both knees. Mrs. Day was admitted to the hospital for observation and the girl was discharged after receiving treatment.

A daughter, Mrs. Kate Vance, 39, of Flintstone, with whom the Days and their granddaughter are residing, also escaped injury.

Mrs. Vance said they were en route to the hospital to visit her daughter, Edna Vance, 17, who underwent an operation Wednesday, when the accident occurred.

Police were told the other driver failed to stop. Corp. John H. Doud investigated.

Soldiers Anxious To Have U.S.O. Club Houses

Allegany County Has Raised $2,501.49 to Date

"When a fellow gets a leave, there's nothing to do but loaf around and it's enough to drive you to drink," commented one of the soldiers in the army convoy which stayed at the Fairgrounds last night.

Several of the men stopped at the U.S.O. headquarters, 12 North Centre street last night when they were given leave after supper at the Y. M. C. A., to inquire about the progress of the Allegany County drive.

"When the men are on leave, there is nothing whatsoever to do," they pointed out. "None of the communities around the camps want loafers, but there's just nothing else for them to do. Remember, we only make $21 a month and that doesn't leave us much for entertainment. So we naturally wander around town, and sometimes get into scrapes," he added.

"All of us are waiting anxiously for these U. S. O. club houses. They sound like home, plus, of course, club facilities."

The club houses of which the soldiers spoke, are part of the program planned by six service agencies now sponsoring a United Service Organization campaign to provide recreational facilities for the soldiers, sailors, marines and defense workers in communities near the camps and bases. Allegany county's quota in the national campaign is $16,000.

One of the men added that he missed his hobbies more than anything else. "We had no facilities at all in Aberdeen, where we have been for three months. From the things I have heard about the clubhouses, there will be hobby rooms. Personally I'm hoping for a dark room."

Allegany county to date has raised $2,501.49, it was announced last night.

Community Market Announces Five-day Week for Employees

Employees of the Community Super Market will enjoy a five-day week under a plan announced by the company. The store will be open six days as usual but employees will work only five days under the new plan.

For the first three days of the week, Monday through Wednesday the market will open at 8 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. On the other three days the opening hour will be the same but the market will remain open until 9 p. m.

The schedule will be continued through the summer months and if warranted may be used the whole year, the management said.

Books on Germany and Russia Can Be Obtained at Free Public Library

Local Man Illustrated Jacket of "Berlin Diary"

Any resident of Cumberland who wishes to brush up on some of the features of Germany and Russia, now at war, may do so by going to the Cumberland Free Public Library where several new books on such subjects are on hand.

One excellent book, "Berlin Diary" by William L. Shirer, former Berlin correspondent of Columbia Broadcasting System, is especially recommended by Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

Eye Witness Story
This is a direct eye-witness story of the history making years of Hitler's rise to power. Shirer's "The Berlin Diary" is a chronicle of the recent past has been chosen as the June Book of the month. It is easy to read and hard to forget. The book jacket is designed by a former Cumberlander who is now a well known artist, Arthur H. Hawkins, Jr.

Hospital Addition Is Being Picketed By AF of L Union

Sub-contractor Fails To Pay Union Wage, Allender Charges

"With work barely underway on the $150,000 Memorial hospital addition, AF of L union pickets were stationed at the project yesterday morning."

F. Patrick Allender, business agent for the Building and Construction Trades Council, said the organization was picketing the job primarily because of the alleged failure of the excavation sub-contractor to pay the union wage scale. He added, however, that the council objected to the fact that non-union labor was employed and declared that the membership had voted not to work on subsequent stages of the construction if non-union labor continued to be employed for the excavation.

"If it started as a non-union job, it will have to be finished as a non-union job," he said.

Days Wages Too Low

Allender said he was told that the Cement Products Company, which started the excavation work Wednesday, was paying its truck drivers only fifty cents an hour, below what he termed the prevailing union scale of seventy cents, and its lone shovel operator less than the union scale of $1.50 an hour.

The general contract let by the hospital board to the John I. Vandegrift Company provides that "the contractor and each sub-contractor shall pay to all laborers and mechanics engaged under this contract on or about the site of the project not less than the union rate of wages prevailing in the locality at the time of the execution of the contract and not less than the minimum rate of wages fixed by ordinance or order of the mayor and city council of Cumberland for city work."

Relying on the first section of the wage proviso, Allender maintained that the drivers should be paid seventy cents an hour, which he said was the scale agreed to by many contractors under union contracts effective June 1 or subsequently. The contracts for the hospital job was signed Monday.

Roeder Issues Statement

William P. Roeder, of the Cement Products Company, declared it was his understanding that the proviso relating to the rate paid for city work was applicable to truck drivers. Under a law passed by the legislature, the minimum scale for all labor employed by the city was set at fifty cents an hour, and it was this rate that Roeder said he contemplated paying, in accordance with his understanding of the contract.

It was learned last night, however, that the city pays its truck drivers fifty-five and one-half cents an hour, and it was understood that Roeder had expressed his willingness to pay the same rate. It was pointed out that several of the trucks are hired from driver-owners.

Concerning the union scale, the picture was confused by reports that some union drivers were working for sixty cents an hour, but Allender said that this was true only on jobs contracted for before the new rate became effective June 1.

As to the shovel operator, it was explained that a union man had been employed at the $1.50 hourly rate, but he was transferred to another project when picketing began. He was replaced by a man described as an "apprentice," paid at seventy-five cents an hour, and it was said that no union scale is set up for apprentice shovel operators.

Work on Houses Stopped

Allender announced, meanwhile, that union workers affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Council had stopped work on two houses being built by the Vandegrift Company in protest against the procedure on the hospital addition project.

Spokesmen for the Vandegrift firm declined comment, asserting that company officials had not been approached by the union concerning any grievances at issue.

The union has no contract in force with the Vandegrift firm at the present time.

Fireman Succumbs To Crash Injuries

William Charles Lugenbell, 38, of Gaitersburg, Md., one of three firemen injured June 19 in an automobile crash on the National highway, died today at 1:30 a. m., at Allegany hospital.

Lugenbell suffered a fractured skull, severe scalp lacerations, bruises and shock when the car in which he was riding failed to negotiate a sharp curve, careened from the road, rolled down a ten-foot embankment, struck a bridge and landed in a shallow stream. Two other firemen injured in the crash were able to leave the hospital the following day.

The three men were enroute to Cumberland to attend the state firemen's convention when the accident occurred.
